Committee Leans Toward Subpoena

Fish Labels Tactics a 'Patent Stall'

(Special to The Daily Freeman)

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.), reflecting the rising tide of resentment and frustration among Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee, has labeled a White House refusal to deliver 41 tapes requested by the committee until April 22, "a patent stall."

The Judiciary Committee had asked for the tapes on Feb. 25. White House Attorney James St. Clair informed the committee on Wednesday that the White House would determine which tapes the committee would get and that it would let its decision be known by April 22.

Fish termed St. Clair's remarks "gratuitious."

"It is not his role to tell us what we have enough of," Fish declared. "We have acted with great restraint in the last six weeks (since Feb. 25). We could have issued a subpoena at any time. We are still reluctant to do so."

Fish predicted, however, that the House judiciary Committee, meeting today, would vote to issue a subpoena for the 41 Watergate tapes, which Fish said contain "specific references" to Watergate in conversations between President Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, John Erlichman and John Dean.

"We're getting fed up with this stalling," Fish said. "We think it's in the public interest to act expeditiously."

Fish, who has maintained strict neutrality on the Watergate issue, citing his membership on the Judiciary Committee, fell short of accusing the President of "stalling" by withholding information the committee has requested.

He did, however, suggest a certain responsibility on the part of the President for St. Clair's actions. "Normally, a lawyer represents his client's wishes," Fish said. "The lawyer usually gets the client to agree with his tactics.

"Mr. St. Clair, by his actions, does the President no service. He has succeeded only in putting the Republican members of the Judiciary Committee in a bad position," Fish said.

Meanwhile, the White House made a last minute compromise offer to the House Judiciary Committee today in an attempt to ward off a subpoena for presidential tape recordings sought in the committee's impeachment inquiry.

But the offer failed to satisfy the Democratic majority on the 38-member committee and the Democrats moved to issue a subpoena for all 41 tapes sought from President Nixon.

A vote on the subpoena was scheduled for late this afternoon.

Forty-five minutes before the committee met to discuss the subpoena issue, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, St. Clair, telephoned John M. Doar, chief counsel to the inquiry, ordering to provide some but not all of the materials requested.

The month and a half-old committee request was in six parts—four for specific tapes of conversations between Nixon and his top aides in February and March, 1973, just before and after Nixon said he learned of the Watergate cover-up.

The fifth and sixth requests were for tapes covering five days of conversations last April.

St. Clair offered to provide the first four parts without a subpoena, but not the last two.

Doar outlined St. Clair's offer to committee members, but Democrats insisted on proceeding with a subpoena for all six parts.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeirer, D-Wis., said, "It is a little late to make a deal."

House members fear that a prolonged court battle over whether Nixon must comply with a subpoena will only muddy the impeachment issue.

If a subpoena is issued and Nixon either defies it or seeks a court order to quash it, he will be able to argue that the doctrine of executive privilege — a president's right to keep internal secrets — protects his action.

Four Defendants Want Sirica Disqualified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four defendants in the Watergate cover-up case asked U.S. District Court Wednesday to disqualify Judge John J. Sirica from conducting the trial because they said he has "generally displayed what can only be called a prosecutorial interest."

The motion asking for an evidentiary hearing in the matter said "Judge Sirica possesses, consciously or unconsciously, a deep-seated and unshakeable personal bias in favor of the prosecution."

Sirica presided over the trial of two of the break-in defendants in January 1973 and has been involved in such subsequent Watergate developments as the White House tapes case, the missing and erased portions of those tapes and in successfully urging some defendants to talk freely with various investigators.

Related stories on page 36.

"Judge Sirica has been personally involved in the investigatory and prosecutorial progress leading up to the indictment of defendants as a result of which there has been a merging of the judicial and prosecutorial functions in this case," said the motion.

The paper was filed by attorneys for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former White House aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson. A separate affidavit was filed by a fourth defendant, former White House aide Gordon Strachan.

The motion alleged that Sirica, who assigned himself the case in his last days as chief judge of the court, "has a substantial personal interest in the case" because if a conspiracy can be established it "would be viewed as a vindication of his conduct in the 1973 Watergate trial."

The four men, along with H. R. Haldeman, Robert Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson, all are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice. All except Mardian are charged in multiple counts with other offenses, including perjury and obstruction of justice. Their trials were set by Sirica for Sept. 9.

The motion called attention to the vast publicity Sirica has received since the break-in trial a year ago, including being named Time magazine's man of the year and a party given for him by members of the press for his 70th birthday.

"Judge Sirica's involvement in this, the most publicized criminal investigation in history, has made him a national hero, subjecting him to all of the gratifications and stresses that come with such exalted status," the motion said.

"Judge Sirica has not been oblivious to press attention . . . surely Judge Sirica's public standing would be enhanced if his 1973 suspicions about higher involvements were borne out by actual convictions of these defendants."

The brief went on, "We do not mean to disparage Judge Sirica's motives or his attentiveness to his obligations. We simply point out that, like all judges, he is human."

Meanwhile, the judge in the case resulting from the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist indicated he will not accept national security grounds as justificatiin for the break-in.

"A very simple conspiracy is alleged," said U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell at an open-court meeting of lawyers when the national security defense was mentioned. "What is relevant is whether or not there was an agreement to bust into the doctor's home and whether they did it," he said.

"All this talk about national defense and the Russians and everything else has nothing to do with the case," Gesell said. "The case has to do with whether there was an agreement involving the 4th Amendment."

The 4th Amendment prohibits unreasonable searches.

Ehrlichman and Colson and four other men are charged with conspiracy to violate the rights of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in the case.

In addition, Ehrlichman is charged with four counts of lying under oath and much of the discussion centered on whether he should be tried separately from the others on those charges. The judge reserved his ruling, but indicated the trial might begin as early as June.

The attorney for Eugenio Martinez and Bernard L. Barker, two other defendants in the federal case, argued also that Henry B. Rothblatt should be disqualified as attorney for Felipe de Diego. Rothblatt represented Barker and Martinez for a time in the Watergate break-in trial. Gesell did not rule on that either.

Guerrilla Carnage . . . 21 Victims

By United Press International

An Arab guerrilla suicide squad seized two buildings in the Israeli border settlement of Kiryat Shemona today with a demand that Israel free 100 Palestinian guerrillas held in Israeli jails. But witnesses said the guerrillas blew themselves up after killing women and children hostages.

Mayor Avraham Aloni told his town council, that 21 persons were killed — three guerrillas, two Israeli soldiers, eight adult civilians and eight children.

The attack came at the height of an Israeli political crisis in which Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and her cabinet resigned and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan left an emergency cabinet meeting to fly to the battle scene.

Witnesses in the town near the Lebanese border told the national radio the decisive Israeli army counterattack came when a paratrooper unit landed on the top of a seized three-story apartment building from a helicopter. Then, coordinating their attack with soldiers on the ground, they began moving into the building firing as they went.

About that time, the witnesses said, the room where the guerrillas were barricaded exploded.

"As we ran up the stairs, they were holed up in the last apartment," one soldier told the radio. "As we got there they set off their charges and blew up the wall and that closed the account."

One witness said the guerrillas appeared to be between 20 and 30 years of age.

"Those who have been inside the building say there is the body of a man or woman on every doorstep," said a national radio reporter allowed into the town. "It seems that they broke into each apartment methodically to shoot somebody."

Foreign Minister Abba Eban called the attack an "abomination."

"Every civilized man must ask himself where this plague will lead," Eban said. "The conclusion must be a war without restraint against enemies of humanity and an end to the awful leniency toward these organizations (Arab guerrilla groups) in many places."

Kiryat Shemona, about one and a half miles from the Lebanese border, has a population of about 18,000 persons. It has been a frequent target of guerrilla attacks.

A spokesman said the guerrillas were wearing explosive belts and had specific instructions to blow themselves up if Israeli troops stormed the building.

The Israeli command said 20 Israelis were "hit" but did not specify if they were dead or injured.

There also was renewed fighting between Syrian and Israeli troops on the Golan Heights today — the 31st consecutive day of the war of attrition. The fighting there has accompanied diplomatic efforts by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to win an Israeli-Syrian agreement to disengage their troops.

Several Seeking Golda's Post

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir — "at the end of the road" — formally tendered her resignation to President Ephraim Katzir today in reaction to the factional infighting in her ruling Labor party.

"Mr. President," Mrs. Meir said in her letter of resignation, "in accordance with provisions of section 23 of the basic law of government and having informed the cabinet of my intentions I herewith tender my resignation from the post of prime minister."

Mrs. Meir's formal resignation followed by one day her bombshell announcement that she was stepping down. It will open a battle for her succession at a crucial time in the moves for Middle East peace between Israel and the Arabs.

Before sending her letter to Katzir, Mrs. Meir met with her cabinet to inform it officially. It met an hour late, some 90 minutes after a band of Arab guerrillas attacked the town of Kiryat Shemona near the Lebanese border, killing at least 16 persons.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who is at the center of the crisis which provoked Mrs. Meir's decision to resign and who is potentially one of the candidates to succeed her, left the cabinet meeting to fly to the scene of the Arab attack.

Twenty minutes after receiving Mrs. Meir's formal resignation, Katzir said he would begin consultations immediately with political leaders in an effort to find a replacement for her and her government to run Israel on a caretaker basis.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel would continue to meet its international obligations during the transitional period. Israel is engaged through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in delicate negotiations for a troop disengagement with Syria on the Golan Heights where there has been daily fighting for a month.

"There will be no atmosphere of tentativeness," Eban said.

Mrs. Meir met with Katzir after briefing the outgoing cabinet on her decision to step down.

Political sources said the resignation meant the immediate fall of her five-week-old government, but her Labor party might still manage to form a new administration without calling new elections.

Labor party leaders mentioned Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, Justice Minister Haim Zadok, Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon as likely choices to succeed Mrs. Meir on an interim basis.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said the resignation marked a possible shift in power from her leftist Labor party, which has ruled Israel since independence in 1948, to the rightwing Likud bloc.

Dayan, leader of the Labor party's Rafi wing, told a group of his followers the resignation might signal "new political realignments" favoring Likud.

Menahem Begin, head of the hawkish Likud, said he would try to rally as many factions as possible behind "a transitional government with a different makeup from that of the present one."

CSEA Demands $1 Million

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Salary increases totaling nearly a million dollars, retroactive to Jan. 1 are being demanded by Ulster County employes who were expected to turn out en masse this afternoon to pressure the County Legislature for individual increases of $1,188 a year each.

The employes planned to make their pitch at the 4 p. m. session of the board and just prior to an executive session called by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) to consider reopening a cost of living wage increase.

It is expected that most legislators will agree to a raise for the close to 900 employes but it is not known whether they will approve the entire $1,188 per employe, specifically asked for by the Ulster County Unit Civil Service Employes Association President Walter M. Parslow.

It is also expected that a few of the Legislature's more conservative minded legislators may oppose an increase.

CSEA members have been waging a hard-hitting campaign for more money in their paychecks in recent weeks, bombarding the legislators with mail and telephone calls and placing advertisements in newspapers. "The days are over when public employes can be made to crawl for poverty level wages," Parslow said.

If the Legislature decides to grant an increase and indications are good that it will, the increase would not apply to those employes whose previous salaries of under $5,000 were raised to the $5,000 level under the present contract.

Parslow called for a huge delegation of employes to show up at the legislature meeting asking that "those who get off work at 5 p. m. save their breaks or overtime and report to the fifth floor (Legislative chambers) at 4:45 p. m. sharp."

Many county legislators have said they agree that the employes need a cost of living increase but point out that they have been requesting the CSEA for several years to provide a salary schedule which they feel is adequate for consideration. CSEA has not cooperated or met with this request, according to Savago.

CSEA members are currently working under a two-year contract with the county due to expire Dec. 31, 1974. It is expected that after the present consideration of the requested $1,188 increase is resolved that the county and CSEA will begin negotiations soon for another two-year wage contract.

Parslow has said that the general feeling among the 900 employes is that their salary levels were already below those of many of their counterparts in many counties before the present sharp rise in the cost of living began. "Consequently," he said, "since a report came through that the increased living cost during 1973 alone was actually better than nine per cent, their demand for money right now is that much stronger."

Theodore Wenzel, president of state CSEA, told local employes that salaries which seemed adequate for 1974 when they were being negotiated back in the fall of 1972 "are obviously way out of step after the unbelievable spiral in the economy this past year."

Both Parslow and Michael Carroll, CSEA field representative, have expressed optimism concerning the wage increases saying that "the plight of the county employes, many of whom are receiving public assistance to supplement their full-time wages, will soon be lessened."

The Legislature will meet again at the 8 p.m. session of the board at which time it is expected that if it decides to grant an increase, a resolution to provide for the funds will be acted upon.

THE GREAT ESCAPE—Clad only in tennis shoes and ski mask, an obviously enthusiastic young man heads for the get-away car after streaking through the Kingston High School cafeteria shortly after 11 a.m. Wednesday. The prank was well-planned; eyewitnesses said the scurrying streaker—apparently in his teens—had guards posted at the cafeteria doors to insure his escape. The daring dash marked a somewhat unorthodox celebration of Spring vacation, which began today.

Town Board Takes Action

Tree Chopping Permits in Rosendale

By CARL GRAHAM

ROSENDALE — The Rosendale Town Board Wednesday night adopted a local law that requires utilities to obtain a permit to cut trees on two roads.

The local law, passed unanimously requires utility firms to pay a $5 fee and obtain a permit from Building Inspector Otto Person before cutting any tree larger than four inches in diameter, except in cases of emergency. Violations could result in fines of up to $100 per tree.

Supervisor Richard Glazer pointed out that the law did not apply to trees along county or state highways, over which the town has no jurisdiction.

The board approved a $9,405 bid for communications equipment for the town highway department and police patrol car with Nelson Communications of Highland, an RCA dealer. Nelson was low bidder of three firms on a base station and nine mobile units for the highway department and a police car radio.

In response to a question from the audience about a town littering ordinance, Town Attorney Martin Tully revealed that an ordinance had been passed in 1946 prohibiting dumping of trash and refuse along town highways and in public places. Penalties include a $50 fine or six months in jail or both.

Tully said that finding evidence such as letters with addresses on them could not be considered sufficient for conviction, and that a summons would have to be issued. Glazer said he had conducted a survey of the town and had found littering to be "incredible" in several places. He issued an appeal to people of the town to cooperate by not littering and suggested a cleanup campaign to remove litter from roadsides and improve the looks of unpainted buildings and other "eyesores."

Glazer reported that he had met with representatives of the Rosendale Volunteer Firemens' Association to discuss a fire code for the town. Glazer praised the cooperation of the Association, which has formed a committee to draw up a code for town board approval.

A letter from Tully to Theodore Musal, chairman of the Planning Board, concerning possible removal of an unnamed member of the planning board was read. Tully said that the town board could remove a planner for cause after a public hearing. He suggested that to avoid a public hearing the planning board member be asked to resign.

Councilman William Ritter, chairman of the Recration Committee, reorted that he, Justice Albert Morelli, and Glazer had met with Rosendale village representatives and owners of A La Bonne Table Restaurant on Route 32, located at the site of the former Sportsmen's Park, to work out an agreement for the town's recreation program for the summer. Nothing definite has been decided, Glazer said, adding that if the town cannot work out an agreement there it will have to look elsewhere "and frankly, I don't know where we would look." The posesible agreement would include use of the pool and picnic area on the property.

Glazer said he had just received a copy of the agreement by which the town would join Kingston and six other towns in a cooperative landfill study. He said copies of the agreement would be distributed to councilmen and a special meeting would be called after they had time to study the matter.

The board accepted the resignation of Dr. Walter Pokowitz from the Narcotics Guidance Council. In his letter of resignation, Dr. Pokowitz said he was unable to spare the time needed to attend meetings of the council.

Marbletown Jobs Discussed

TOWN OF MARBLETOWN — The Marbletown Town Board Wednesday night discussed but took no official action on proposals that would make sweeping changes in the jobs of two town officials.

The first discussion centered on a suggestion that the town highway superintendent's position be changed from elective to appointive status. Several persons at the meeting felt that the highway superintendent's post, now held by Milford VenDemark, should be a full-time position, with the superintendent appointed to the position by the town board.

Supervisor Kenneth Smith said that Town Attorney Douglas Hunt would investigate the procedure necessary to make the change and report back to the town board at its next meeting.

The second proposal concerned a change in the town's three member Board of Assessment and called for a change to a single, full-time, appointed assessor. The change has been recommended by the state and has been adopted by several other towns in the county.

Smith, cited, however that town residents had turned down the proposed change to an appointed assessor by a 176 to 37 vote in a referendum held two years ago, when the state first suggested the change be made.

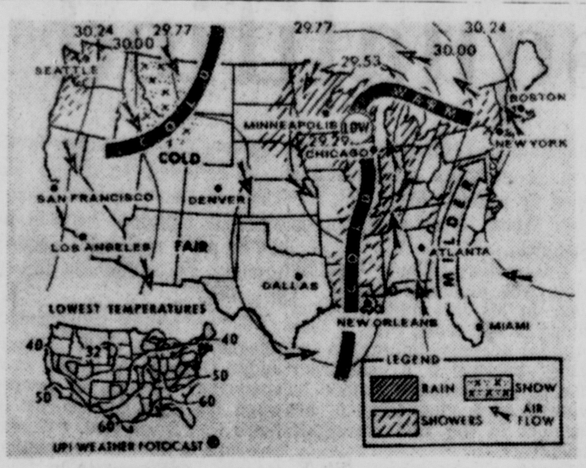

"In looking at other towns with full time assessors," Smith said, "I can't see that they have done any better than we have on equalization rates."

Two of the three assessors were present at the meeting and joined in the discussion. The town's assessments are made at 11 per cent of full value according to state figures and the equalization rate was lowered this year from 14 to 11, which means a larger proportionate share of taxes for town taxpayers.

The board, in response to a request from the Beautification Committee, designated May 1-8 as Cleanup Week in the town. Smith said that having people of the town clean up their own areas had worked very well in the past and he hoped that they would cooperate again this year in painting, cleaning up, and beautifying the town.

The board reappointed Perry Cobb, Mrs. George Numrich, and Robert Filipek to the Beautification Committee and named George Larabee Jr. as teenage representative to replace Joseph Clark Jr., who has graduated from school.

Charles Gray gave the committee's report on its work in 1973, including a tree planting program, work on Marbletown Park, and awards to businessmen for cooperating in making their buildings and surroundings more attractive.

At United Nations Meeting

Gromyko Answering China

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Soviet Union sent Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to the United Nations today to answer China's charges that Russia and America have become the world's "biggest international exploiters and oppressors."

The Soviet diplomat was scheduled to address the U.N. General Assembly later today following a bitter attack against the two superpowers by China.

Teng Hsiao-ping, Chinese deputy prime minister and the highest official ever sent by Peking to the United Nations, told the General Assembly Wednesday the two nations were to blame for much of the world's ills.

"The two superpowers are the biggest international exploiters and oppressors of today," he said. "They are the source of a new world war."

The Chinese attack came on the opening day of a special General Assembly session to study demands by developing nations for higher prices for their raw materials.

Hsiao-ping, although criticizing the United States, concentrated his attack on the Soviet Union, labeling Moscow a "merchant of death."

"In the recent Middle East war it bought Arab oil at a low price with the large amount of foreign exchange it has earned by peddling munitions, and then sold it at a high price, making staggering profits in the twinkle of an eye," he said.

American sources said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was expected to arrive in New York Sunday night and reply the next day to China's attack on the United States.

The sources said the United States was unenthusiastic about the conference, called by Algeria's President Houari Boumediene to counter the Washington world oil consumers meeting organized by President Nixon.

Although Kissinger has expressed a desire to consult several diplomats attending the session, U.S. sources said he planned to see only Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi in New York.

Several of the other 82 foreign diplomats and cabinet ministers attending the session were expected to arrange appointments with Kissinger in Washington.

Diplomatic sources said Gromyko and Kissinger would not meet at the United Nations, but the Soviet diplomat might travel to Washington to see the secretary on Friday.

Arab Leader in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are opening talks with Algerian leader Houari Boumedienne in an effort to gain influence with the increasingly important Arab leader.

The two administration officials scheduled a meeting at the White House with Boumedienne, who is making his first visit to any Western nation.

The Boumedienne meetings takes on extra importance because of the jolt given U.S.-Mideast policy by the collapse of the Golda Meir Cabinet in Israel.

The United States and Algeria have not had diplomatic relations since the Israeli-Arab war in 1967 and President Nixon asked for today's meeting as a prelude to resumption of formal contacts.

There were several reasons for the American effort, including wider access to the extensive natural gas fields in Algeria. But international politics was a major motivation.

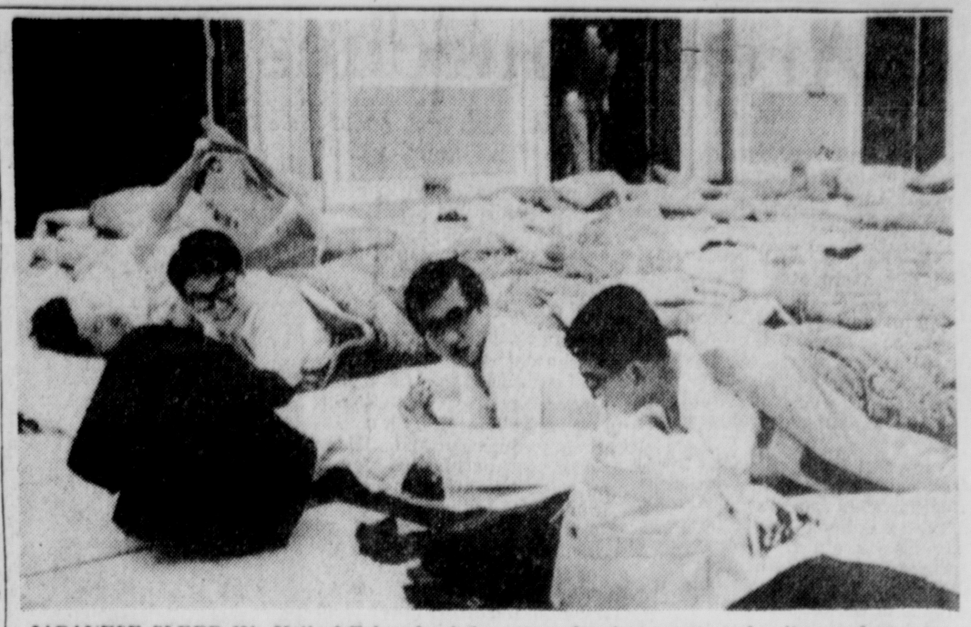

Kissinger has been trying to increase American influence among the major Arab nations in order to strengthen his leverage in arranging a Middle East settlement.

Boumedienne has moved increasingly into a leadership role among the Arabs and Kissinger seeks closer ties to avoid being dependent on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for his influence in the area.

In addition Boumedienne has become a leader among less developed nations generally. He is in the United States to attend a special United Nations General Assembly meeting called at his initiative on pricing and allocating of raw materials held by developing nations.

Boumedienne is expected to resist any quick re-establishment of relations without some direct link to a new phase in the Middle East peace move, particularly another Israeli troop pullback.

It is extremely unlikely that this will happen until Israel's political situation stabilizes and that may take months.

JAPANESE SLEEP IN—Hall of Tokyo bank becomes sleeping quarters for its employes as millions of Japanese rail workers launched an unprecedented strike in a dispute over wages . . . stranding 65 million persons. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Strike Hits Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese labor's annual "shunto," its spring wage offensive, reached its peak today with millions of workers on a one-to-five-day strike affecting more than half the nation's 108 million people.

It was the closest thing to a general strike in Japan's history.

The workers struck the railroads, subways, buses, taxis, airlines and commercial shipping.

Also hit were schools; telegraph, government and post offices; municipal garbage collection; forestry preserves; the government printing agency and the mint.

The nationwide labor movement is seeking wage hikes of 30 to 35 per cent to counter the soaring cost of living, which rose 24 per cent last year under the pressure from the increase in oil prices.

Some industries have already Kakuei Tanaka has refused to budge from an offer of an 18.7 per cent increase for government workers, including those on the national railway, and has also failed to satisfy the rail workers' demands for the legal right to strike. Tanaka proposed a two-year study of the right-to-strike question by a special cabinet council.

The transport strikes affected more than 40 million people, or two-thirds of the work force. Those who didn't stay home struggled to their offices and factories on foot, by bicycle, car pool or motorcycle.

The Education Ministry said about 15 million primary, middle and high school students — about 96 per cent of the total — got a holiday as the 500,000-member teachers' union went on strikes ranging from one to eight hours.

The 13,600-member Federation of Civil Aviation Workers, including 3,500 in foreign airlines, declared strikes of from two to 72 hours, causing delays in cargo handling and passenger services.

French Communists Backing Mitterrand

PARIS (UPI) — France's powerful Communist party has adopted a low profile in the campaign for next month's presidential election in an attempt to help Socialist candidate Francois Mitterrand.

Communist leader Georges Marchais said Wednesday night his party, which has endorsed the 57-year-old Mitterrand, would not seek "a dominating role" in the government if the Socialist leader wins the race.

"The French Communist party has said it is not making excessive demands today and it will not make them tomorrow," the 53-year-old former steel worker said in a radio interview.

Marchais said a Mitterrand victory would leave the left with the task of forming "a government made up of capable men to put into effect the program that we are presenting to the country."

Mitterrand, secretary general of the Socialist party, has said he would seek greater individual rights, a more just society and a stronger currency in an attempt to increase France's influence and bring about a "profound transformation" in the country.

A poll in Le Figaro newspaper gave Mitterrand 36 per cent of the vote compared to 27 per cent for Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and 26 per cent for former Prime Minister Jacques Chaban Delmas—his two Gaullist opponents.

The top two finishers in the election would meet in a runoff race May 19 if none of them gets a majority in the initial balloting.

The presidency became vacant last week when Georges Pompidou, successor to the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle, died of bone cancer. The Gaullist party split over a candidate, but the left united behind Mitterand.

The full spectrum of France's leftwing political and labor groups, including the Communists, backed Mitterrand's effort to win the presidency.

Middle-of-the-road political leader Jean Lecanuet threw his support behind Giscard d'Estaing Wednesday, saying a Mitterrand victory "would carry the Communists to power."

Lecanuet said the Democratic Center and National Center of Independents parties would back the 48-year-old Gaullist candidate.

Lecanuet, a 54-year-old senator, ran third in the 1965 presidential election, picking up 16 per cent of the total against the winner, Gen. de Gaulle.

Boyle Murder Case Going to Jury

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — A jury begins deliberations today in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle, accused of the slaying of union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

The case goes to the jury of nine men and three women after the instructions from Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Catania.

Testimony against the 72-year-old Boyle wound up Wednesday, and opposing lawyers summed up their versions of the evidence produced by 58 prosecution and nine defense witnesses.

Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, frequently pointing an accusing finger at Boyle, demanded a first-degree murder conviction which carries an automatic sentence of life imprisonment.

But chief defense counsel Charles F. Moses asked for acquittal on grounds there was insufficient evidence and a "reasonable doubt" as to Boyle's guilt.

Yablonski, his wife and daughter were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their Clarksville, Pa., home. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to win the UMW presidency from Boyle — an election later voided by a federal court as fraudulent.

The styles of Sprague and Moses in their closing remarks to the jury was a study in contrasts.

Sprague was loud, strident, hammering, outraged by the "willful, deliberate premeditated murders" of the Yablonskis, which Sprague claimed Boyle originated to retain his tight grip on the 200,000-member union.

Moses was soft-spoken, philosophical, Bible-quoting, insisting that lies by confessed murderers, embezzlers and burglars were the backbone of the prosecution case.

Sprague has pursued the Yablonskis' killers almost from the day their bodies were discovered on Jan. 5, 1970, and, so far, has won guilty pleas or convictions of eight defendants.

Moses centered on the prosecution's chief witness, William Turnblazer, a former UMW official from Tennessee who said Boyle gave the order to kill Yablonski at a meeting in Washington, D.C., on June 23, 1969.

"That, ladies and gentlemen, is a lie, a lie," Moses said.

Sprague retorted that it was Boyle who was the liar, not Turnblazer.

Hess Tells British... 'Hitler Wanted Peace'

LONDON (UPI) — Imprisoned Nazi leader Rudolf Hess, his face gaunt and cheeks hollow, says he flew to Britain in 1940 to tell the world "the Fuehrer wanted to stop the fighting" during World War II.

The one-time deputy to Adolph Hitler looked like a man who had spent a quarter-century in jail when he appeared on British television recently in a film shot secretly at West Berlin's Spandau Prison.

Hess, his hair white and his eyes sunken, said he flew to Scotland in 1941 to open peace talks because he felt Hitler wanted an end to the war.

"I knew that the Fuehrer wanted to stop the fighting by understanding," Hess said in halting English. "I took the opportunity. I remember that I had several times difficulties."

Hess, who has been held in Spandau since shortly after World War II, was sentenced to life in prison in 1946 for war crimes.

Britain's Independent Television News (ITN) said the film and a brief taped interview with the former Nazi leader were made by the former camp commander.

The commander, U.S. Army Col. Eugene Bird, said he lost his job at Spandau two years ago and faced possible prosecution because of his informal contacts with Hess.

One scene in the film, believed to be the first taken of Hess while at Spandau, showed the Nazi leader walking briskly along a path in the prison garden.

In another scene, Hess, who turns 80 on April 26, stood wearing a dark overcoat, clasped his hands behind his back and looked at the camera.

In a third, he laughed and smiled as he read what appeared to be letters.

One short segment of the film showed Hess in his furnished quarters at Spandau, where he has been the only inmate for the past half-year. The walls were covered with charts of the moon.

A commentator said Hess was especially interested in space travel. "He is interested in the future, not the past," the commentator said.

Marijuana Wholesaler Quitting

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Archer is a 25-year-old executive whose business is slipping badly. A few years ago he made $30,000 a year, untaxed.

Today, higher labor costs and foreign competition have hit him hard.

He is a marijuana wholesaler, one of the largest in the Midwest and an original member of a group called the "Kaw Valley Hemp Pickers Association."

He put himself through college working in the illegal trade and he'll soon turn in his blue denim shirt for a white collar. He's making only $17,000 a year now in the marijuana business.

Archer, who shall not be further identified here, employs a crew of four. They toil in backwoods fields and can usually harvest a ton of wild Kansas marijuana from mid-August to early October. They work about 12 nights from dusk to dawn and each crew member gets $125 a night.

Only one problem bothers Archer.

"I'm a little worried about the Internal Revenue Service," he said, pushing his long black hair out of his eyes. "I've never paid any income tax.

"It's a business, it's just like anything else. Labor costs have gone up, foreign competition is cutting us up and the government hasn't helped much."

In better times, tons of Kansas marijuana were trafficked around this university town to both coasts and often beyond.

"The biggest problem has been foreign competition and the inability of the government to control it. Six years ago marijuana was marijuana and nobody knew the difference between good stuff and bad. But the consumers are much more sophisticated now. Most have tried Columbian and Mexican grass and know it's a lot better than ours.

"The government hasn't done much to stop reefer coming across the border."

Archer said one of the few times the price of domestic marijuana had risen back to its peak of $50 per pound was a couple of years ago when the government was running its "Operation Intercept" crackdown.

"That was a pretty effective program," said Asher. "It took a couple of months, but after a while the supply of foreign grass dried up and the price of our stuff was rising."

Importers figured how to get around the blockade, however, and foreign grass started flowing into the United States again. The foreign supply has seriously hurt the domestic market, he said, but it is a problem compounded by amateurs and costly labor.

"Kids who don't know if the plant is mature, if it's ready for harvest, go out and start picking. They don't process it right and they dump it on the market almost right after they've dried it."

The result is textbook economy. The market is flooded, demand goes down with the availability of supply, the price drops out. "And nobody makes any money."

New Devices

After the harvest, Archer starts clearing his supply in late November, controlling the flow to hold the market price steady at about $15 per pound.

Like other industries faced with labor costs and competition, the Kansas marijuana business has turned to technology for help —but Archer thinks it is too late.

One new device is a picker, operated by hand, that strips leaves from the marijuana stalk faster, quieter and more efficiently. Another new item is a portable compact press that will dry up to 10 pounds of weed in an hour.

U.S., Russian Student Exchange

MOSCOW (AP)—Ten Russian students will travel to the State University of New York's Albany campus this September to study the English language and American literature, under an agreement signed this week with the Soviet Union.

At the same time, 10 American students will study at the Moscow State Institute of Foreign Languages, specializing in advanced Russian language training and Russian and Soviet literature and culture.

State University Chancellor Ernest L. Boyer said the agreement — the first formal U.S.-Soviet exchange of undergraduate students — covers only one semester but both sides hoped to continue it indefinitely.

Boyer was in Moscow with the State University delegation accompanying the university's children's theater, which performed "Wizard of Oz" over the weekend to enthusiastic crowds.

Mrs. Patricia Snyder, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., an associate professor at the university's Albany campus, directed the production.

Boyer said the 10 American students who will study in Russia will be picked from the university's 16 campuses in New York State.

Soviet students will live in dormitories at Albany while the American students will live in an international student hostel in Moscow, he said.

Boyer said Soviet officials told him the Americans should expect to spend at least 30 hours a week in class, a far more demanding class schedule than most U.S. students are accustomed to.

He said details had not yet been worked out on providing living allowances but the host countries will pick up educational and residence expenses.

The Russians and State University officials began discussing a possible exchange a year ago when Nikolai Sofinsky, deputy minister of higher and secondary education, visited New York City.

"He took the initiative in suggesting an interest in an undergraduate exchange program," Boyer said. In the past, only graduate students and professors were included under the official exchange program.

Mills' Answer Familiar

Rep. Wilbur Mills, a frequent critic of President Nixon's reelection campaign committee, has taken a similar stand to that of the President in answer to charges of receiving corporate and special interest gifts for his brief 1972 presidential campaign.

According to Public Citizen, the research-and-issue group headed by Ralph Nader, most of the money that was raised for Mills' unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination came from individuals and economic interests that were looking for favorable treatment from the powerful House Ways and Means Committee that he heads.

The report states that Mills' campaign got 23.5 per cent of its contributions from the nation's three largest dairy cooperatives. The report also indicates that one of the cooperatives aided Mills' campaign with apparent illegal corporate money.

In answer to this the Arkansas Democrat says "if I'd had any knowledge it would not have been received." Mills went on to say "But I was unaware of what was going on in the so-called draft-Mills campaign."

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee for the past 17 years, has probably done more to shape tax laws than any other man.

The report from the Nader group states that those tax laws are stacked in favor of corporate interests and wealthy individuals at the expense of middle-income families.

For example, during the Mills' leadership, the tax burden of corporations has dropped from 30 per cent of the country's total tax revenues to 14 per cent, while the Social Security tax burden on all working people has tripled from 10 per cent to 30 per cent of federal revenues.

The tax group's report was based on public records and doesn't count money given to the Mills' campaign in secret before a new campaign finance law took effect April 7, 1972.

Whatever the arguments of Mr. Mills, it is quite obvious that money he raised came largely from interest groups particularly sensitive to government action in certain fields. The committee headed by Mills has jurisdiction over taxes, tariffs, Social Security, health insurance, unemployment compensation and welfare.

The only way that politicians can eliminate financial dependence that ties them to various interest groups and powerful individuals is to shift most of the burden of financing campaigns from private money to public money.

Poor Indian Health Care

Prompt congressional enactment of the bill to improve health care for Indians is a matter of the national conscience. Given the circumstances, it would be intolerable for Congress not to take this action with the least possible delay.

What are those circumstances? What medical services are available now to an American Indian population conservatively estimated at 900,000?

Consider nurses. Fewer than 300 Indians are registered nurses, we are told. That works out to around 30 per 100,000 Indians. In the population as a whole there are 371 registered nurses per 100,000.

The situation is even worse when it comes to physicians. In the general population the ratio of physicians to population is about 1 in 600. To achieve that ratio in the Indian population some 1,500 physicians would have to be added. Insight into the present Indian doctor supply was provided for a Senate panel by Dr. Everett R. Rhoades, a University of Oklahoma medical professor who is vice chairman of the Association on American Indian Affairs' Committee on Indian Health.

Among all the nation's physicians, Dr. Rhoades testified, only 54 are persons of Indian descent. Only one full-blooded Indian physician, he said, is working full-time with inadequacies in other aspects of health care, adds up to a very serious reservation problem.

The dimensions of this problem were outlined to the Senate group by a psychiatric nurse, Rosemary Wood of Norman, Okla., who is president of the American Indian Nurses Association. She spoke of "outdated, inefficient facilities; personnel shortages; insufficient services in vital areas of patient care; lack of access of Indians to health services and lack of adequate housing for staff." This is, in the most literal sense, a shameful state of affairs. Corrective legislation should be passed at once and generously funded.

Nixon Bears Up Under the Strain

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has come through the Watergate ordeal, so far, with no outward sign of strain. This is the remarkable report of aides and visitors whom we have surveyed.

Over the past year, the President's great re-election victory has exploded. One by one, close associates have pleaded guilty to crimes and have accused other trusted aides of crimes. Each day, month after month, has brought news of yet another moral calamity.

The President has been revealed as a tax fudger who would use dubious loopholes to reduce his income tax below that of an ordinary worker, a finagler who would bilk the taxpayers for improvements to his personal property. When crimes and improprieties have been traced right to his door, he has defended himself by claiming the President of the United States didn't know what was going on inside the White House.

The dreary revelations, piled one upon another, might have broken a man of less grim determination. The terrible weight could still affect his policy decisions and cause repercussions around the world.

Therefore, we have interviewed several people who have been in contact with the President — visitors, aides and a few intimates — to find out how he is weathering Watergate. Most asked us not to identify them; a few had no objections to being quoted.

Those closest to the President agree he has gone through agony over Watergate. On occasion, they have heard him erupt with rage and profanity. But most of the time, he has bottled up his feelings and gone off to agonize alone.

His favorite retreat during the lonely struggle with his seventh and greatest crisis has been Camp David in the Maryland mountains. Sometimes, his close friend, Bebe Rebozo, would join him for a long weekend.

Sources who visited the retreat during these periods say Rebozo would mix a small pitcher of martinis and the two men would sit in deep silence seemingly on the same wave length.

The President emerged from his introspection several weeks ago full of confidence. He told aides that the worst was over, that the case against him had been presented in the worst possible light and that hereafter his side of the story would receive national attention.

He scheduled a series of speeches and question-answer sessions to lay his case before the nation. He sought invitations from Republican candidates to prove he wasn't a political liability. He also sought to show that, despite Watergate, he is still governing the nation. As a climax, he hopes to hold a triumphant summit conference with Kremlin leader Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow.

Those who have been in touch with Nixon in recent weeks say he is in excellent spirits, showing no signs of fatigue. His voice is strong and decisive, and he speaks with calm assurance. His eyes are clear and penetrating. He looks his visitors straight in the eye, his own gaze never wandering. His handshake is firm. There is color in his cheeks.

Several people told us he looks better now than ever. Party worker Mrs. Martin Erck, who met with the President for the first time in 12 years, commented wonderingly: "He has held up a great deal better than I have."

He is in good humor, often wisecracking and laughing with those around him. A presidential portrait painter, Graham Yates, showed his portraits to Nixon the other day. The President shuffled through the paintings and came upon his own likeness. Deadpan, he demanded: "How did this get in there?"

GOVERNMENT LOOT: The Fish and Wildlife Service, as we reported last December, is cracking down on shady dealers who profit from killing endangered animals. Although the campaign has been highly successful, it has created an enormous headache for the federal agents.

They don't know what to dow tih all the booty, more than $2 million worth, that they have seized from traffickers in illegal animal products. Government warehouses are stuffed with such items as vicuna coats, leopard skin coats, tortoise shell products, whalebone sculptures and polar bear hides.

There is the head of a walrus, the foot of a tapir and a stuffed, three-toed Brazilian sloth. In one seizure alone, agents confiscated 1,200 paris of shoes made from the hide of the rare Nile crocodile. Another seized shipment netted 20,400 dozen feathers from protected birds. Still another investigation brought in 12,226 cans of barbecued and smoked spermwhale meat intended for gourmet shops.

Normally, seized animal products are donated to museums, zoos and schools. But worthy institutions can use only so many fancy feathers and stuffed heads. And where would they display a vicuna coat or an expensive jewel hewn from the shell of a Hawksbill sea turtle?

Fish and Wildlife officials feel they can't sell the confiscated items or give them away, as this might foster the same dirty business they are trying to wipe out. Some of the expensive items, therefore, may have to be destroyed.

Balance of Trade

On the Right

Affluent Unemployed

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The Boston Globe, an eminent New England daily, seems to cultivate among its columnists a sort of barracks room irritability. Thus all the emunctory sounds of polemicizing are carefully preserved, instead of flushing them out with clinical dispatch. Imagine it, I have been accused by an associate editor of the Globe of having made "an ass" of myself on "Firing Line." And guess how? "By saying nothing." On a program in which I took the liberty of pointing out the great material achievements of America, a panelist chimed in with "and six million unemployed?" "Buckley looked up, puzzled," said the writer — who proceeded to write 600 words about unemployment.

I did not at the time go into the business of unemployment because that wasn't the subject of the program, but I think it only charitable that I share some of the knowledge I have on the general subject with the people at the Boston Globe, to cheer them up a little.

Many people tend to enter the job market when it is good, i.e. when the opportunities are particularly tempting. That is why it often happens that the unemployed rate is high in especially affluent periods. During these periods there is an increase in unemployment as people quit one job in search for a better job. For instance, in 1960 which was a slump year, the quit-rate in manufacturing was 1.3. Now in 1969, which was a boom year, the quit-rate was 2.7. That would show up in higher unemployment figures. But the situation in which people are quitting a job in order to look for a better one is not the kind of situation one should deplore though the distinction is unlikely to attract the attention of talk-show panelists who know only how to come up with the big figures.

There is nothing wrong, as I say, in trying to get a better job. Even in 1971, which was a bad unemployment year, only 46 per cent of those who were unemployed had lost their jobs. And 45 per cent of the unemployed during that year were out of work for less than five weeks.

You have then the category of those who do not need to work. Principally these are women and teenagers. The bulk of the unemployed between the ages of 16 and 21 never worked before they appeared as statistics in the unemployment fields. Of these unemployed in October 1972, 42 per cent were enrolled in school, and only seven per cent had lost previous jobs. Over 55 per cent were looking for temporary work, which implies that they will show up yet again as unemployed.

Nor is it accurate to equate a rise in the unemployment rate with an increase in jobless workers. If the same number of people remain unemployed for a week or two longer than normal on the average, the unemployment rate will rise significantly. In the recession year of 1970, unemployment was 4.9 per cent and average duration of unemployment 8.8 weeks. In the boom year of 1972, unemployment was 5.6 per cent — but the average duration was 12 weeks. But who would argue (outside of a few columnists) there were fewer job vacancies in 1972 than in 1970?

The labor unions of course contribute to the paradox. If a state is highly unionized, those who are unemployed stay unemployed longer, looking for choicer jobs; and tend to have greater unemployment benefits. In Washington, for instance, there was a 9.1 per cent unemployment rate in 1972. There there is 40 per cent union membership (in non-agricultural business) and the average weekly benefit is $60. And the average duration of unemployment benefits is 16 weeks.

North Carolina had 3.2 per cent unemployed, 7.8 per cent in labor unions, $39.50 in benefits — and 11.2 weeks average period of unemployment.

In January of 1971 there were 70.3 million Americans employed and the unemployment figure was 6 per cent. Two years later there were 73.9 million persons employed, but the official unemployment figure was down only 0.9 to 5.1 per cent.

The long and short of it is that in America our unemployment is itself in most cases a considerable tribute to the general affluence. There are jobs. But these are jobs that people don't care to take for a combination of reasons. A lifestyle, the availability of social benefits, the ability to live at home — and not work at all. It is a pity this is not understood by people who are not wise enough to let things pass when the alternative is to display the superficiality of their understanding.

"Hey, wow! Look at that old 'CAMPER'!"

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

Second Class Education Again

RICHMOND, Va. (KFS) — The time of troubles here at John Marshall High School are past. It's been several years at least since the students were brawling with each other in this now preponderately black institution.

Around the table are five white students and a black English teacher, all talking about integration, busing and quality of education. "You can't learn anything because every class has 50 minutes of black history," one of the student says, and the others agree that black history, black culture and black politics dominate what happens in most classrooms most of the time.

Much of it they regard as a fraud. "I got an A once for giving a report on a tribe I made up. The Illagonda tribe," says a 17-year-old boy who is graduating this spring. "I told how a professor from Oxford had found them and drew pictures of the lean-tos they had. Before I did it, I told another student what I was going to do. He said the teacher would get me when we got to the questions. But would you believe it, the teacher answered the questions for me, and I got an A!"

This is all said and agreed to in good humor. For the most part these white students seem pleased that the busing has given them a chance to meet black students. But no one at the table thinks it has done much more than that. They are disdainful of the white flight, as they constantly refer to it, because they think it has contributed to the academic destruction of their school.

In essence, the black English teacher agrees. In addition, she points out that the students coming into her classes each year are less and less well-prepared so that, "We can't read any books and have to resort to magazines, and when that doesn't work we do collages and put pictures on the wall. This isn't the rule in every class, but it happens very, very often."

A girl student sums up her experience in recent public education by saying, "I've felt for the last four or five years that school has been one of my major holdbacks." On closer questioning, however, it appears she doesn't quite mean that. What she really means is that school would have been her major holdback if she hadn't learned to teach herself.

"You learn to read and write and you have what you need to survive," is how one of the boys expresses it. Another says he found out that, "You could sit and make an A. But by the end of last year I realized I hadn't learned anything, so I started learning how to get it myself."

This bad high school has probably been good for these five teenagers. They now know what many people coming out of graduate schools with Ph.D's don't — that most learning is self-taught. Coming from families that have books around and an anxiety for their children's success, John Marshall High School may be perfect for them and for black kids of similar background. But the un-bookish black students only get what the girl at the table calls, "a fake sense of their own intelligence." While motivated white kids are profiting from adversity, the black kids are being ruined by educational fads, racial politics and rotten standards of pedagogy and administration.

"The reason for wanting the busing was that nobody would put money into a school unless there were white kids in it. This isn't what we wanted," says the black teacher, referring to times past during the integration struggle. No one could have foreseen that so many strange ideas were going to hitch rides on those yellow buses, but they have, giving rise to what you might call a malign neglect.

For the retreating whites, teachers, administrators and parents, it is easier to turn over a school system that you're leaving than stand and insist that black kids should be made to learn to read. In a way you can't blame them; it's hard enough to teach such skills without being called an institutional racist, too.

In this negligence, they are abetted by a growing number of black, civil-service teachers who are willing to betray their calling and their students by letting them think the right attitude toward nationalism, politics or culture is the same as competence and proficiency. The graduates from this system can recycle back into it as teachers or hold down jobs as part of the black percentage that white organizations hire so as not to be sued for discrimination.

We have come full circle, with blacks again having their own schools with their own teachers with their own second-class standards, but now after so many people went to jail and died, they say it's all right.

BILL BURNING — Ann Marie McKiernan of New City, burns her electric bill Wednesday outside the Orange and Rockland Utility Company headquarters in Spring Valley. Demonstrators protested as stockholders met inside. Mrs. McKiernan's bill has skyrocketed to $381.42 and the utility wants another increase. (UPI)

Annual Blue Laws Effort Is Underway in Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state legislature has undertaken its annual and traditionally unsuccessful effort to update the state's "Blue Laws" regulating the sale of a long list of merchandise on Sundays.

The Senate approved and forwarded to the Assembly Wednesday a bill prohibiting the sale of any article on the Sabbath except for food, souvenirs and antiques.

This year's version of Blue Law revision spells out what items could not be sold on Sunday—the reverse of the approach tried during the 1973 lawmaking session.

Breaking the Sunday sales law would be made a violation—rather than a crime under existing laws — but the revised statute would increase fines from the present $5-$10 for a first violation to $50-$100.

Small "mom and pop" grocery stores and restaurants would be exempt from the Sunday sales ban.

The chief legal officer in any community could move for injunctions to prevent violators from continuing sales on Sunday or the Sabbath and if the injunction was not complied with any person could bring a civil action against the store with fines ranging from $100 to $1,000 for each violation.

In other actions Wednesday, the Senate passed a bill, 57-2, setting standards for ambulance service in the state.

The measure would apply to volunteer ambulance corps and its sponsor, Sen. Tarky Lombardi Jr., R-Syracuse, said it was introduced partially to avert the possibility of losing federal aid.

The measure would require voluntary ambulance units to register. There also are provisions for training and standards but any unit already in existence by Sept. 1 would not have to comply with those provisions.

In the Assembly, a bill was passed which would eliminate the current $30,000 limit on the amount of life insurance a savings bank could sell to an individual would be eliminated. In a related measure, the Assembly approved a measure which would allow savings and loans associations to sell life insurance.

A bill authorizing the State Atomic and Space Development Authority to finance pollution control facilities for coal or oil-fueled electric generating plants also gained Assembly approval.

Sen. Bernard C. Smith, R - Northport, sponsor of the "Blue Law" legislation, said the present laws regarding Sunday sales had outlived their usefulness.

The measure, which was passed 37-16 and sent to the Assembly, was a sharpened up version of a bill which was vetoed by then Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller last year.

That bill listed items which could be sold but Rockefeller disapproved it on the ground that it left too many questions.

Smith said spelling out which items could not be sold would eliminate the confusion.

Items which could not be sold are clothing and wearing apparel, clothing accessories, furniture, housewares, home, business or office furnishings, household, business or office appliances, motor vehicles, tools, hardware, paints, building and lumber supply materials, jewelry, silverware, watches, clocks, luggage, musical instruments and recordings or toys.

In order to qualify as an antique, an article would have to be 100 years old or be an "ethnographic" object made at least 50 years prior to the sale.

Budget Surplus Under Attack by Democrats

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An alleged surplus of $58 million in Gov. Malcolm Wilson's $9.314 billion state budget is under attack by ranking Democrats—the second year in a row that the Republican administration has been accused of building a fiscal cushion.

The latest charge was launched Wednesday by Sen. Jeremiah Bloom and Assemblyman Burton Hecht, Brooklyn Democrats who are the ranking members of the legislature's fiscal committees.

Last year, they charged that then Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was creating a secret surplus of up to $750 million.

This year, the two Democrats said, Wilson was underestimating revenue growth by $135 million; continuing an unneeded income tax refund reserve worth $145 million; speeding up payments of $80 million and slowing down revenues of $20 million as part of a plan to create the surplus.

In addition, they said, Wilson's original spending proposal of $9.383 billion had been trimmed by $69 million and the governor's spending was overestimated by $74 million. Other bookkeeping devices, they said, added up to $45 million for a total $58 million surplus.

Even if the full $221 million in proposed additional school aid is approved, Hecht and Bloom charged, Wilson's surplus still would be $347 million.

The pair said that "discretionary" action taken by Rockefeller and Wilson since February, 1973, when they first accused the GOP of building a surplus, "had the effect of diminishing the size of the budget surplus."

Although the Republicans denied the claims last year, Hecht and Bloom said the GOP had accelerated spending and delayed revenue deposits to "allow excess revenues to be carried forward for use in future fiscal years."

The listed surplus at the close of the fiscal year, March 31, was $127 million but the Democrats said repayment of $513 million in loans along with other fiscal maneuvers trimmed the actual cushion.

Bloom and Hecht claimed the budget process "allows a build-up of a massive surplus while ignoring the desperate financial plight of local governments across the state."

They cited higher property taxes; fiscal crises in Buffalo and Rochester and the New York City budget deficit as prime examples of areas in need of aid from the state.

Rondout Board Postpones 'Sale'

KYSERIKE

The Rondout Valley Board of Education has postponed an earlier 'inclination" to sell the old Rosendale School building.

At its March meeting, the school board agreed to advertise for bids for the sale of the building, now used by Ulster County BOCES as headquarters for its trainable mentally retarded classes. But the board decided Tuesday night that to sell the building at this time would leave BOCES in a bind for classroom space.

After postponing the sale of the building, the school board appointed a committee to inspect the building, and to determine whether it is feasible to continue to rent it to BOCES.

In other action, the school board approved the borrowing of up to $300,000 on a revenue anticipation note for a period not to exceed 30 days. Clerk John Basten noted that the board is simply borrowing against money due in state aid, but which hasn't arrived yet. When the state aid money does arrive, the loan will be paid back.

The school board also advertised for bids for the relocation of several temporary buildings. One would be used for the storage of physical education equipment; the other for use by the building and grounds department of the district.

Also, the senior class trip was given board approval, although it hasn't been definitely decided yet where the senior class will go on May 19 and 20.

In personnel action, the board accepted the resignations of Miss Mary Breon, a high school business teacher, effective June 30 and Miss Jacqueline LePaige, a special education teacher at the Marbletown School, effective June 30.

Appointments included Miss Brenda Berry, middle school English, effective March 25. She replaces Eleanor DeWitt, who is on a leave of absence.

Mrs. Eunice Krom was appointed a teacher aid in the Rosendale Resource Room. That is a new position.

E. Robert Fuhr, part-time teaching principal at the Rosendale School, and Mrs. Janet Smith, part-time teaching principal at the Accord school, were reappointed to their respective positions for the 1974-75 school year.

Lower Rates . . . Not Yet

RHINEBECK

Consumers in the Village of Rhinebeck's water district may have expected lower water rates when big users such as Ferncliff Nursing Home were added for service.

But that apparently won't be the case.

Former village trustee Francis Kinney asked Water Committee chairman Tim Yaeger this week at the regular village board meeting if there was any reduction in the minimum water rate expected, harking to the plight of fixed income recipients and the admittedly lofty rates paid by consumers in relation to many others.

Yaeger replied that there is very little planned in that direction because there is very little revenue increase. Some "profits" anticipated from new sources have been "wiped out" by higher costs for everyting from chemicals to repairs necessitated when the plant blew two years ago, according to Village Clerk Patricia Pflum.

The board also passed its 1974-75 budget after a public hearing with but one person in attendance. Little opposition to the $284,098 general fund and $180,401 water fund was apparently generated because the tax rate for village residents will remain the same, said Mrs. Pflum.

Some appointments made for the coming year in the reorganizational portion of the meeting were: fire committee, Harold Nichols; building committee, John Marks; police committee, Mayor Peter Sipperley; water committee, Tim Yaeger; zoning enforcement officer, James Loftus; acting police justice, Joseph Waters; attorney, Robert Winne; police dispatcher, Caroline Neuberger; historian, DeWitt Gurnell; tax collector, Patricia Pflum.

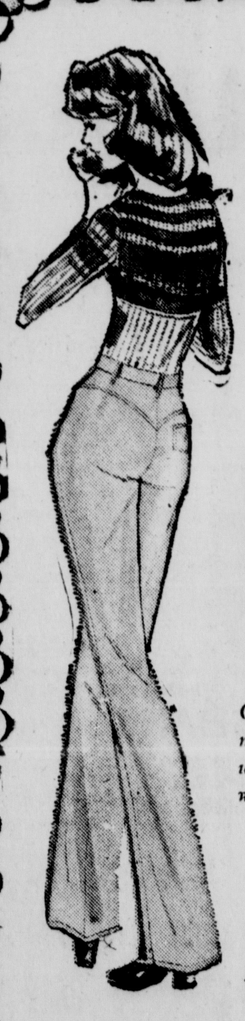

Clean up week for debris will be carried out every day the week of April 22.

Casinos on Times Square Proposed by Businessman

NEW YORK (AP) — A major group of Broadway businessmen says it has found a way to revitalize Times Square—famed in recent years largely for its pornographic movies and squalid sex for sale.

The answer: gambling casinos, Las Vegas style.

Robert W. Watt, president of the Broadway Association, said the group's board of directors on Monday approved a recommendation that the city and state draft legislation that would legalize gambling casinos.

The idea would be to substitute Las Vegas style gambling, in plush surroundings, for some of the seedier attractions of the area which has been called Crossroads of the World.

"I think the economy of the city will not be improved appreciably until the trend in Times Square is improved," said Seymour Durst, who was named chairman of a subcommittee named to lobby for such a measure. "We've been seeking ways to do this. I think this is the only way," Durst added.

The Broadway Association represents about 200 owners of theaters and other property in the Broadway area.

Fast, Vigil In New Paltz

NEW PALTZ

Members of the Group for the Reconciliation of People Everywhere (GROPE) will conduct a fast and vigil in New Paltz Friday night, Saturday and Sunday to express their support for 300 Vietnamese Buddhist monks who have been similarly fasting in Chi Hoa Prison in South Vietnam since March 5.

The three-day vigil will take place at the intersection of Main and Chestnut Streets in New Paltz. On Sunday, the pacifists will pass out leaflets in front of churches in the village.

According to Ann Costello, a spokeswoman for the GROPE, "There are over 200,000 Vietnamese people imprisoned by President Thieu; a direct violation of the Paris Peace Agreemen. American tax dollars pay for 80 per cent of Thieu's budget. Our tax money finances the jails, military equipment, police force, detention camps for refugees (another violation of the cease-fire agreement), and even supplies the military with 22,000 barrels of oil a day."

Ms. Costello added that national news media have been refused entrance to the Chi Hoa Prison. Newsmen from both CBS and NBC, she said, were detained by the Saigon police when they tried to report news of the monks. The monks are reportedly protesting the use of torture and unjust arrests of innocent people.

Potatoes Now Luxury Item

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Potatoes have jumped into the luxury class of foods this week because of "skyrocketing" prices, a state agency reports.

Prices also rose this week for broccoli, cauliflower, eggplant, endive, escarole and tomatoes.

Prices of western navel oranges rose slightly.

But the department said bananas and grapefruit remained in the best buy category.

Letters to the Editor

Saugerties Ambulance Service

Editor, The Freeman:

On behalf of the Asbury-Katsbaan Fire Co., I would like to thank you for your prompt and knowledgable service to us.

Just to know that you will be standing by at a fire takes a tremendous burden from the minds of our firemen enabling us to concentrate on fire fighting.

The service you provide to us and all the other fire companies in the township is greatly appreciated and we thank you.

Sincerely,
J. PETER MORLEY

Live Gifts

Editor, The Freeman:

Once again the Easter season approaches, and once again the Ulster County S.P.C.A. urges parents and grandparents not to present children with living animals as toys.

A baby rabbit, chick or duck is not likely to survive in the home atmosphere. They cannot be housebroken and can cause many problems. A young child's enthusiasm over the new pet often results in unknowing cruelty as legs are broken or wings crushed in handling. Even if the pet should reach maturity and be wanted by the family, many local ordinances would prohibit the family from keeping it.

Easter and the coming of Spring should be a time of joy and respect for all life, not a time of needless suffering and death of young creatures.

Give the children stuffed toys or chocolate bunnies, but leave the farm animals where they belong and are happiest.

Gray Testimonial

Editor, The Freeman:

As Chairman of the Gilbert E. Gray Testimonial event, I wish to extend my personal gratitude to those who served on my committees and to those area organizations and members of the news media who so generously participated in this most deserving tribute.

A communique from the guest speaker, General Earl E. Anderson, Assistant Commandant, United States Marine Corps., states, "It was a great pleasure for me to be part of such a warm and sincere tribute to Gil Gray; he richly deserves the high praise accorded him. My many thanks to Kingston Post No. 150 The American Legion and to the proud citizens of your community for permitting me to share this evening with you. Congratulations to all who worked so hard to make it a resounding success and I sincerely appreciate the many courtesies and enthusiastic acceptance demonstrated by all with whom I came in contact."

On behalf of Kingston Post No. 150 The American Legion, may I offer our sincere THANK YOU to all those who so graciously supported this highly successful tribute to such an outstanding citizen.

Methadone Program

Editor, The Freeman:

I would very much like to take exception to your editorial comments entitled "Evidence of Methadone" which appeared in the April 5, 1974 edition of The Daily Freeman. I assert that the ideation offered, and conclusions drawn, are at the least simplistic and invalid when applied outside of cities like New York. I strongly invite you to investigate the methadone maintenance program which has been operating in Kingston since September of 1971, which has treated approximately 400 heroin addicts (many of whom are now drug-free citizens), has dispensed many thousands of doses of methadone and has never been accused of supplying a dose of methadone which has caused anyone's death. I would invite you to compare the total number of overdose deaths from methadone to the number of overdose deaths caused by the massive amounts of legitimately prescribed tranquilizers and or barbiturates in any recent year, and I would wager that the editorial's naivete concerning the complexity of drug abuse and its treatment would be exposed.

The staff of the Ulster County Drug Commission's Methadone Maintenance & Rehabilitation Program is proud of having had their program termed "a model for other methadone maintenance programs," in an evaluation by the New York State Drug Abuse Control Commission. Even the patients of our program have contributed significantly to our efforts to prevent methadone from being diverted to unauthorized hands. We would all welcome an editorial, article or an investigation report which accurately reflects the "success" of methadone as a maintenance treatment in Ulster County.

Sincerely,
MICHAEL K. WOOD

Shaky Start

Editor, The Freeman:

THINK ABOUT IT The father had syphilis; the mother, tuberculosis. They had four children. One was blind, another had been born dead, the third was a deaf mute, the fourth tubercular. The mother was pregnant again. Today, an abortion would have been advised. But — the mother had her baby — that baby turned out to be LUDWIG VAN BEETHOVEN!

Very Truly yours,

SS Overpayments

Editor, The Freeman:

This is in reply to a letter entitled "Fighting the System" signed by John F. Gallagher which appeared in your April 3 edition. Mr. Gallagher, among other things mentioned that a man who had worked 45 years and paid social security since it was established received a letter saying he owes over $1,000 because there was an error made by social security that he had nothing to do with. He went on to say that social security was holding back his checks until the entire amount was recovered.

I would like to inform Mr. Gallagher that if this gentleman was without fault in causing the overpayment he should follow the instructions contained in the letter telling him of the overpayment. These instructions indicate that if the overpayment was not his fault in any way and that he couldn't meet his necessary living expenses if he had to pay back the overpayment, or if it would be unfair for some other reason, or if withholding the entire amount of his monthly benefit would casue a financial hardship, he should get in touch with his social security office.

I would like to assure Mr. Gallagher that the Social Security Administration is not insensitive to the needs of its beneficiaries. However, when an overpayment occurs it is the responsibility of the Administration to recover same regardless of who is at fault. If Mr. Gallagher will have the gentleman involved get in touch with the undersigned so that all the facts can be obtained, I am sure a fair decision will be made.

Many overpayments occur because a beneficiary who is working underestimates his earnings for the current year and social security payments are made during that year. Subsequently, when the worker receives his Form W2 the actual earnings are substantially higher causing an action to recover the payments that should not have been made. In these situations the beneficiary cannot usually be found without fault because he has the responsibility of keeping a record of his earnings and reporting to the social security office whenever he finds that his original estimate is not correct.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE J. HABERNIG JR.

RALPH NADER . . . CONSUMER ADVOCATE

Nader Scheduled at UCCC

STONE RIDGE — Ralph Nader, consumer advocate, will speak at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College at 1:40 p.m. on Tuesday, May 2. His topic will be "The Politics of Energy."

The talk concludes a spring lecture series, "Environments; Inside and Out," being sponsored by the Social Science Division at the College in cooperation with the Student Government Organization.

Nader began his career as an assistant to Daniel Moynihan during the Kennedy administration. He gained a national reputation when his book, "Unsafe at Any Speed," a devastating account of the dangers of American automobiles, was published in 1965.

In 1968, Nader established the Center for Study of Responsive Law. He attracted a group of bright young professionals — subsequently called "Nader's Raiders" — to work researching public interest issues ranging from air and water pollution to soil and food contamination, abuses of health and safety, Congress and corporate monopolies.

Nader owns no car and spends, by his own reckoning, no more than $5,000 a year. He says his only desire is for reform of the injustices of 20th century America and "making the government more responsive to the needs of the people."

AEC Conducts Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says it is investigating the possibility that passengers aboard two Delta Airlines flights may have been exposed to radiation earlier this month from an improperly shielded shipment of radioactive materials.

The AEC said preliminary indications were that the maximum possible exposure would not be strong enough to cause any immediate physical problems in the average person.

But the agency said it had informed the Virginia and Georgia health departments of the possible exposures and said it was checking to determine whether any pregnant women or small children were aboard the two flights.

Pregnant women and small children are more susceptible to radiation, an AEC spokesman said.

The AEC said the material — 32 curies of solid Iridium 192 — was shipped from Washington to Atlanta on April 5 aboard Delta flight 311 and from Atlanta to Baton Rouge, La., on April 6 aboard Delta flight 585.

The possible radiation leakage was the second such incident on a commercial airliner in recent years, the AEC said.

The first incident, also involving Delta, occurred Dec. 31, 1971, when a shipment of liquid Molybdenum 99, a medical isotope, leaked into the cargo hold on a Delta jetliner.

Arab Oil Shipment Reaches U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big tanker-load of Arab oil has reached the United States in the first major shipment received since the lifting last month of the Arab oil embargo.

The Federal Energy Office announced this week that the Italian tanker Elba Lolligeiti has arrived at Norfolk, Va., carrying 344,000 barrels of crude oil from Algeria.

Exxon Corp. said its own initial shipment of Mideast oil since resumption of Arab supplies — 50,000 barrels of crude aboard the Esso Barcelona — was due to arrive today in New York Harbor.

Anticipating the renewed availability of Arab oil, the FEO has told U.S. petroleum companies to draw upon current inventories to boost gasoline allocations for the month of April.

Meanwhile, the American Automobile Association said its latest survey shows that motorists will find it easier to obtain gasoline this week, but they will probably be paying more per gallon.

The AAA's weekly spot check of some 6,000 service stations across the nation found that since the week before, the average price of regular gasoline has climbed a penny to 54 cents a gallon. Premium average 57 cents per gallon, the survey reported.

Highest average prices for regular gas were 56 cents in Hawaii, Illinois, New York and South Carolina while peak prices for premium reached 60 cents a gallon in Illinois, New York and Hawaii, according to the AAA.

In other energy-related developments:

—Federal energy chief William E. Simon said the Environmental Protection Agency is too restrictive in its standards for utilities which convert to coal for generating electricity. He said EPA policy will not encourage increased use and production of coal.

—Deputy energy chief John C. Sawhill said more federal funds may be required to offset the impact of rising fuel costs on the aged.

—The House Ways and Means Committee voted to retain the 22 per cent depletion allowance for natural gas shipped across state lines.

Venezuela Nationalizing Industry

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela is preparing to nationalize its oil industry, one of the chief foreign suppliers of the United States, in the next decade.

Most foreign oil concessions expire in 1983, and already two bills calling for immediate nationalization of the 3.3-million-barrel-a-day industry are before a congressional committee.

The bills were introduced by the Social Christian party, the leading opposition faction, and the small, left-wing People's Electoral Movement. President Carlos Andres Perez's new Democratic Action government has set up a special committee to study eventual nationalization and report in 60 days.

The foreign oil companies — most of them American — have not objected to nationalization and say they are willing to discuss new arrangments with the Venezuelan government.

The government last week ordered a 5 per cent cutback in oil production effective April 15. Valentin Hernandez, the minister of mines and hydrocarbons, said the purpose was to conserve natural gas lost in pumping crude oil.

Several Venezuelan experts favor as much as a 50 per cent production cut to save oil for future sale at better prices. But President Perez has said this would not be advisable on moral and political grounds.

Exxon's Venezuelan subsidiary, the Creole Petroleum Corp., was hit hardest by the 5 per cent cut because it is the largest oil producer. The company said it will ship about 100,000 barrels a day less as a result.

A score of foreign oil companies, which also include Shell, Mobil, Sun, Gulf and Texaco, produce about 95 per cent of Venezuela's oil output. The companies operate under a system of 40-year concessions. A 1970 oil reversion law was designed to ensure a smooth and orderly state takeover without compensation when the concessions run out. But all political parties agree the government does not have to wait until 1983 to take over the industry.

To the demands for immediate nationalization, the center-left government — which has a majority in Congress — has said: "We cannot play with the backbone of our economy. We must proceed carefully and intelligently."

Venezuela supplies the United States with about 1.7 million barrels of oil a day and ships another 450,000 barrels a day to Canada.

Tax Commissioner Raps IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service often fails to advise taxpayers of their rights at the beginning of a tax dispute, and many times misinforms when it does, a tax court commissioner says.

The IRS realizes this first contact is the most important, yet the agency often leaves a citizen puzzled, said U.S. Tax Court Commissioner Joseph N. Ingolia. He testified at a hearing on taxes held by a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Ingolia said that when the IRS audits a return and an aspect is questioned, the taxpayer is sent a form letter or is called by an agent.

"He is not advised of his rights to go to the courts at this time but instead is invited to discuss or settle his problem usually by bringing in additional information.

"It seems clear that when the first contact is made with the taxpayer, there is no desire to inform him that he may go to court rather than discuss settlement. This is so because the IRS believes settlement is the correct answer, but is this fair to the taxpayer? I think not," Ingolia said.

He said that when the IRS does advise the taxpayer of the tax court option, it often tells them such a course would be time consuming and expensive. But, he said, for a small cases, the court usually takes an hour for a $10 fee.

He also said IRS does not clear up the misconception of many taxpayers that the tax court is an arm of the IRS.

Also appearing before the subcommittee was a former revenue agent now head of the tax agency employe's union who said IRS agents work under a quota system for closing cases.

Vincent L. Connery, president of the National Treasury Employe's Union said the collection division of IRS is more concerned with the number of cases closed "with little or no regard to the effects of the orders on the individual taxpayer.

"Revenue officers are oftentimes rewarded for seizing a taxpayer's assets and severely disciplined if they permit him to remain in business and repay his debt to the federal government: part payment plans do not close cases," Connery said.

Audit Planned for Demonstrators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service until recently was prepared to audit the taxes of anyone attending a rock festival or burning his draft card, according to an IRS internal memo.

The memo was made public this week by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. It is a January 1973 status report on a what was called a special compliance group set up inside IRS to collect intelligence information on all persons or groups advocating so-called extremist views.

The unit was set up in the first year of the Nixon administration and by 1973, according to the memo, had amassed 8,000 files on individuals and 3,000 on organizations. It had collected 12,000 classified documents and had compiled a list of 16,000 groups or individuals "who fall into the category of posing a threat and probability of tax violations," the IRS memo stid.

"The magnitude and potential of this facility is unlimited," the memo said. "A recent audit supports the conclusion that this function offers high potential as a deterrent to widespread tax violation by activist groups."

The memo was signed by John J. Flynn, regional commissioner of the North Atlantic region of the IRS. It was addressed to IRS directors.

The document said that the IRS was collecting information, with the help of law enforcement agencies, on so-called violent groups.

It also said that members of non-violent groups also were being included.

"Included are those who publicly destroy and burn draft cards, destroy Selective Service records, participate in and organize May Day demonstrations, organize and attend rock festivals which attract youth and narcotics..." the memo said.

It also said IRS agents were interested in the tax returns of those aiding in the sale of firearms to the Irish Republican Army, who travel to Cuba, Algeria or North Vietnam or who are engaged in "inciting commotion and resistance to authority by encouraging defectors in the Armed Forces to enter into alliances to subvert this nation..." the memo said.

Weicker said that the special unit was dismantled in August 1973 at the same time that allegations were being made before the Senate Watergate committee that the White House had used the IRS to benefit President Nixon's friends and to punish his political "enemies."

Abort Opinion Evenly Divided

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The American public remains almost evenly divided in the abortion controversy, according to the Gallup Poll.

In the latest survey, taken last month, adults in more than 300 towns throughout the country were asked: "The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that a woman may go to a doctor to end pregnancy at any time during the first three months of pregnancy. Do you favor or oppose this ruling?"

Of 1,582 adults surveyed, 47 per cent expressed approval, while 44 per cent said they opposed it. Nine per cent had no opinion.

A similar poll in December 1972, taken before the Supreme Court ruling, showed 46 per cent in favor and 45 per cent opposed.

The polling organization said little change had occurred in the attitudes of major population groups between the surveys. In both surveys, more men than women favored abortion privileges. Catholics continued to oppose them by about two-to-one, and Protestants remained slightly in favor of them.

In the latest poll, 51 per cent of the men and 43 per cent of the women expressed approval, while 38 per cent of the men and 49 per cent of the women were opposed.

The poll found sharp differences based on education. Persons with college educations favored abortion privileges 67 per cent to 27 per cent against. Of those whose educations stopped with high school, 44 per cent approved and 48 per cent disapproved. Among those with grade school educations, 25 per cent approved and 57 per cent disapproved.

Feminist Notes 'Revolution'

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N.Y. (AP) — Feminist Gloria Steinem says there is a feminist revolution going on in this country even though it is being trivialized by the press.

"When men hear the term revolution they picture us taking over the army and the railroads," Miss Steinem told about 500 persons Tuesday night at Briarcliff College.

"We have much more than that in mind," she said. "You'd call it an anthropological revolution."

In her address at the 4-year women's college in this affluent Westchester County community, Miss Steinem contended that white men control 95 per cent of the world's political power.

Black feminist Jane Galvin-Lewis speaking on the same topic said the idea that the black woman has always been free was only a myth. "She has been strong and aggressive because she had to take charge and support her family. Well, freedom is not having to be out there, but wanting to."

Miss Steinem said that both minorities and women suffer political oppression at the hands of the white man.

Dipping into the anthropological origins of the feminist revolution, Miss Steinem said that as soon as men discovered their role in reproduction they began to view women primarily as the means to produce posterity.

On the timidity of her sex, Miss Steinem ventured the following explanation: "Women don't gamble because their total instinct for gambling is satisfied by marriage."

Postal System Study

KINGSTON

Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk has welcomed local student groups to the U.S. Postal Service Educational Program, in which local schools participate in a new school program incorporating a wide range of study of the nation's mail system.

The new program is designed for pupils in grades 3-5, but Newkirk said it was only the beginning of an educational project the USPS plans to expand throughout elementary and secondary grade levels.

Newkirk said effective mail service depends much on the customer's knowledge of how to use the mails effectively, and the place to begin teaching that is in the schools.

"In addition," he continued, "we believe the program represents a significant contribution to the education of our youth. An important part of the school curriculum is teaching students about their community, and the mailman is the object of a child's natural interest and curiosity."

The project now consists of educational kits provided for distribution to participating classrooms. Each kit contains workbooks entitled "Jr. Postman" with illustrations, games, puzzles and stories about the postal service. Also included in the kit is a 24-page teacher's guide, bookmarks displaying stamps, and the stories behind them.

Nearly 5 million copies of the workbook will have been printed and distributed by the end of the project.

Also in the kits are Jr. Postman cards certifying that a pupil has taken part in the program, a poster showing how a letter travels, and a print of the film "But How Does It Get There."

Field trips to the Kingston Section Center Facility are also part of the program.

Lions Expo Booth Set

KINGSTON

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has scheduled a double display booth at the Lion's Exposition to be held from April 30 through May 4 at the New York State Armory on Manor Avenue.

Each night will highlight a different program of the church. On Tuesday, April 30, the program will pertain to the functions of the Melchizedek priesthood relating to genealogy, temple work, and the work of the elders.

Wednesday, May 1, will be missionary oriented, showing Book of Mormon displays. Thursday, May 2, will be centered on the Family Home Evening Plan. Friday, May 3, the youth program will be highlighted by a film strip relating to youth involvement in leadership.

The closing night, Saturday, May 4, will feature the Women's Relief Society, relating to food storage, homemaking, and handicrafts.

On Sunday, May 5, there will be an open house at the church on Fording Place Road, Lake Katrine, where all of the booths from the Exposition will be on display and a movie, "Meet the Mormons," will be shown.

Also featured will be Elder Stephen Browning, a professional operatic tenor, and Elder Jared Nuffer, a professional concert pianist, who are presently in the mission field.

The public is cordially invited to attend the program, which begins at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Horror Classic Set Saturday

HIGH FALLS

Hold onto your popcorn, anchor your seat belt, and prepare for an evening of thrills. The High Falls Film Festival will present the renowned British horror classic, "Dead of Night," on Saturday, April 13, in the High Falls Fire House.

"Dead of Night" is an unforgettable, intertwining of six supernatural tales concerning ghosts, haunting, precognition, and demonic possession, with a brilliant cast headed by Michael Redgrave, Sally Ann Howes, and Googie Whithers.

The feature will be preceded by the eerie award-winning short, "Dream of the Wild Horses," and (of course) Chapter 11 of "Flash Gordon's Trip to Mars."

The show, sponsored by the Marbletown Artist Association, begins at 8 p.m.

NEWSPAPERS SELL THE MOST

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices showed little change in a drifting stock market today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was about even with Wednesday's close, and gainers led losers by a very narrow margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said many investors were waiting on the sidelines to see whether interest rates would continue their sharp climb of the past few weeks.

Today's prices on the Big Board included Kennecott, up ⅛ at 40; Pittston Co., down ½ at 34, and Warner-Lambert, up ½ at 35¼.

Winnebago, which said it expected to show a loss for the year ended Feb. 23, was down ⅛ at 6⅛.

Howard Johnson was off ¼ at 9⅝. The company reported sharply lower first quarter earnings this morning.

On Wednesday the market was mixed in slow trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average eased off 3.13 to 843.71, but advancing issues outnumbered declines by a narrow margin on the Big Board.

Boy Injured; Fatal in Pine Bush

SAUGERTIES

A six-year-old Saugerties boy, who darted into the path of a car near his home Wednesday, was reported in poor condition today at Benedictine Hospital.

Later Wednesday night, in a separate accident, a 25-year-old Pine Bush man was killed instantly when his car slammed into a tree in the Sullivan County Town of Mamakating.

Josef Hinchey of 68 Livingston Street, Saugerties, suffered severe internal injuries, multiple abrasions and lacerations and a fractured left elbow in the 5:15 p.m. mishap, according to Saugerties village police.

Police said the youngster was playing with friends when he apparently ran into Livingston Street from behind a parked car. The driver of the car, 24-year-old Joyce Grande of Saugerties, was unable to stop in time. Police said the driver was not held.

The youngster was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service. He is the son of Maurice Hinchey, a Democratic State Committeeman from Ulster County and Erika Hinchey, a member of the Saugerties Village Board.

Killed in the Sullivan County crash was 25-year-old Kenneth Bain of Pine Bush. Ferndale state police said he was traveling west on Burlingham Road, about two-tenths of a mile from the Ulster County line, when his car failed to negotiate a curve and slammed into a tree. Bain was killed instantly.

Clear 'Slide' In Highland

HIGHLAND

It took work crews with heavy equipment more than five hours Wednesday night to clear away several tons of rock and dirt that buried a portion of Oaks Road and a parallel Penn Central railroad track in Highland.

The sudden landslide was attributed to melting snow and water runoff. The 60-foot embankment overlooking the road and rail line gave way at about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, according to Highland state police.

The landslide also caused a brief power shortage in the Highland area when it toppled a utility pole. Central Hudson repair crews, as well as workmen from New York Telephone, Penn Central, the Highland Fire Department and the Town of Lloyd Highway Department, worked until after 11 p.m. to clear the debris.

An 85-car Penn Central freight train was delayed for several hours while the work proceeded, said police.

There were no injuries.

Wilson Signs Bell Bill

ALBANY

Governor Malcolm Wilson has signed into law, legislation sponsored in the Assembly by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) allowing any person receiving social security to earn up to $2,400 a year without loss or reduction of social security benefits. The law is retroactive to January 1, 1974.

The legislation, Bell said, meets a recommendation made by the Permanent Commission on Public Employe Pension and Retirement Systems, that earnings limitations on retired public employes who are subsequently reemployed in the public service be made to conform to Federal Social Security Act limitations.

"Prior to the signing of this bill," Bell pointed out, "the earnings limitations for persons receiving a public retirement allowance was $1,000. With the measure now law, retired persons living on a fixed income have the opportunity to supplement their earnings to meet the rapidly rising cost of living."

In approving the measure, Governor Wilson expressed his appreciation to Assemblyman Bell and Fred Field of Albany County and Senators Walter Langley of Albany County and Richard Schermerhorn of Orange County, citing them for leading the effort on behalf of retirees.

328 WALL UPTOWN KINGSTON

Insurance, Landfill; Esopus Board Topics

PORT EWEN

Townwide flood insurance, the on-going inter-municipal landfill study and an increased tax exemption for senior citizens highlighted Wednesday's meeting of th Esopus Town Board.

The town board authorized Supervisor George Freer to apply for federal flood insurance at substantially reduced rates. The town has requested federal officials to survey the area to determine the specific coverage the town requires.

Freer noted that there are several areas in the Town of Esopus that require protection, including the Wallkill River area in Rifton and the confluence of the Rondout Creek and Hudson River in Sleightsburg. He said that insurance purchased by the town would be considerably cheaper than if individual residents or businesses had to buy the coverage themselves.

The board also approved a $150 expenditure which represents the town's share of costs for the inter-municipal landfill study. The idea is to locate an area that would accomodate refuse from the City of Kingston, the Towns of Esopus, Rosendale, Hurley, Ulster and Kingston, and the Village of Rosendale.

Freer said the bulk of the study is being sponsored by the Office of Local Government, with only minimal costs to the local municipalities. The long-range planning concept is designed to locate a site for future use, if it's ever needed. Indications are that it will be.

Following a public hearing Wednesday night, the town board unanimously voted to grant senior citizens a 50 per cent tax reduction if their income is $6,000 or less. The previous deduction had applied to senior citizens who earned only $5,000 or less per year.

In other matters, the board received a communication from Kingston Cablevision, which stated that its installation schedule is filled through July, 1975, and that some areas of the town not serviced by cable television might get quicker service by contracting with a different franchise.

Several progress reports were issued Wednesday. Town officials reported that the state will take measures to alleviate sand wash problems that have aggravated homeowners in Sleightsburg for some time. The problem involves sand that is washed onto streets and lawns from a nearby gravel plant.

36 Eagles Are Feted

KINGSTON

Thirty-six young men of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America who earned the rank of Eagle Scout in 1973, were honored at a recent banquet held at the Holiday Inn, Kingston.

The Eagle rank is the highest that can be attained and is only achieved by a small percentage of those who enter the scouting program.

The young men honored were: Mark A. Glass and Ronald D. Zimmerman, Kingston, Troop 9; James H. Niver and Neal J. Redmond, Kingston, Raymond E. Smith, Saugerties, Troop 10; Thomas K. Casey, Kingston, John T. McCooey, Mark S. Reynolds, Greg R. Sanderl, Raymond J. Sanderl, William L. Schreiber and Lawrence Yerry, Lake Katrine, Troop 14; Earl E. Proper, Shokan, Troop 63; Francis P. Castaldo and Mark B. Smith, KIngston, John D. Raffaldi, Charles T. Ring and Robert G. Short, West Hurley, Troop 66; Robert A. Stall, Kingston, Troop 103; Mike W. Anderson, Bruce L. Grupe and Douglas S. McCorkle, Stone Ridge, Robert J. Beatty and Steven W. Coddington, Accord, David J. Cobb, James M. Smiseth and Russell Van Sickle, Kingston, Robert J. Doyne, High Falls, Troop 16, John Gow IV, Marlboro, Troop 72, John D. McElhenney and William L. Hoberecht, New Paltz, Troop 172; Scott A Taylor, New Paltz, Troop 272; Allen D. Uhler, Catskill, Troop 41, Also P. Cardamone, Freehold, Randy J. Hood, Earlton and Douglas J. Welter, Greenville, Troop 42.

The program highlighted a talk by Kenneth L. Beale Jr., Eagle Scout of the Valley Forge Council, who, in addition to many honors in scouting, was the winner of the 1972 Reader's Digest Public Speaking Contest and was in that same year, at the age of 20 appointed by President Nixon to the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. He is believed to be the youngest ever to recieve a presidential appointment. Beale challenged the new Eagle Scouts to give to scouting as scouting has given to them.

Hurley Scouts Achieve Top

HURLEY

Two Scouts of Troop No. 103, Hurley, recently achieved the highest rank in Scouting, the coveted Eagle award.

At a Court of Honor held March 26 at St. Joseph's Hurley Mission, Mark Macenka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore J. Macenka and Robert Stall, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Stall, received their Eagle scout badges.

The two Scouts were introduced by Scoutmaster Dick Ruth who gave a brief summary of their scouting careers and their school and community involvement.

Monsignor John J. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, delivered a few remarks and complimented the boys on their achievements. Armand Bonneau, representing the Rip Van Winkle Council, BSA, also congratulated them for attaining the highest rank in Scouting.

Richard Rioux, former Scoutmaster and founder of Troop 103 in his presentation remarks commented on the goals of Scouting as seen through the eyes of Scouters, parents and Scouts. The boys were then presented with their certificates and awards. In addition, each boy presented an Eagle necklace to his mother. Prior to the Eagle Court, the following received awards: Jeff McCoy, Steve Hakim, Tim Sgroi, Steve Gally, Dan Farber, Bob Simek, Ted Davis, Bob Kaplan, John Schoonmaker, Leo Bigler, Doug Meurs, Ken Gellhaus and Bob Stall.

The rank of Star Scout was earned by Ted Davis and presented by Joseph Rossi, committee chairman. In addition, Dave Baker, Cubmaster, Pack 103, presented Den Chief Cords to Mike Stinton, Mike Rossi, John Schoonmaker and Brian Sheldon.

New York City Printers Vote Strike Authorization

NEW YORK (UPI) — Printers at New York's three major daily newspapers voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to authorize union leaders to call a strike.

Later in the day, printers at the New York Times stopped work for 90 minutes for a union meeting. It was the first of a series of expected job actions against the Times, the Post and the Daily News. The printers have been without a contract since March 31, 1973.

Bertram A. Powers, president of New York's Typographical Union No. 6, was ordered to appear today in Manhattan Supreme Court to explain why his union held the job action at the Times in defiance of a previous court order.

Union spokesmen, however, said the strike authorization cancelled the injunction. The vote was 6,422 to 655 to give union leaders the power to call a strike at any or all of the three dailies.

The issues in the dispute are wages and the publishers' plans for automation.

The slowdown in the Times' composing room delayed the typesetting of classified ads but otherwise had little effect on today's editions, a newspaper spokesman said.

The newspapers have offered a raise of $13.85 a year in a two-year contract, in addition to 1.5 per cent of gross yearly earnings toward fringe benefits in the first year and a 3 to 4 per cent cost of living clause in the second.

Lake Plans Revealed

ROCHESTER

Plans for the privately owned portion of Lake Minnewaska were unveiled Tuesday night to Town of Rochester planners prepared by famed New York City architect Edward Durell Stone.

The design conception calls for demolition of the two main existing buildings, including the 1897 Cliff House which has been deemed obsolete, the building of condominiums, private homes, small motels and other commerical enterprises along the border of the 7,000 acre state property adjoining it.

The owners of Lake Minneswaska, Kenneth Phillips and Kenneth Phillips Jr., sold 7,000 acres of the 10,000 acre parcel to the state several years ago. The state has declared its intention to keep its portion as a natural preserve with some accomodation for recreational facilities.

The plans were presented to the board by Everett Lord-Wood, design conception engineer, for informational purposes only.

The Rochester planners also held a public hearing and approved the application of John Daly and Henry Hadden for appoval of the sale of antiques on property on Route 209 adjacent to the Rainbow Dinner.

It delayed action on the application of Joseph Gordon and Stephen Perira who plan a 30.5 acre subdivision of 14 lots on the Rainbow Acres property on Samsonville Road.

Home owners in the Jasper S. Worley Development in Accord, complained to the board concerning water and sewage problems in their development. The board referred the residents to the town attorney Joseph J. Traficanti.

Plans for additional subdivisions in the Town of Rochester were discussed including Rock Mountain Farm and the C. M. Development Corp. on Upper Granite Road.

Attorney Declares Candidacy

WOODSTOCK

James R. Myers, a Woodstock attorney, has announced his candidacy for the Board of Education of the Onteora Central School district.

Myers, a practicing attorney for 10 years, is a past president of the Woodstock Rotary Club, served as chairman of the Woodstock Salvation Army Committee and as a trustee of the Overlook United Methodist Church. He also served as a town justice on the Woodstock Town Board for two years.

Myers is currently a director of the Woodstock Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Lay Advisory Committee of the Onteora Central School District, which evaluates future pupil population projections in the light of physical facilities which presently exist and which will be required in the future.

"I feel it is very citizen's right and duty to become involved in school district activities," Myers said in commenting on why he is seeking the school board post. "I feel that as an attorney I can make a significant contribution."

A resident of the school district since 1959, Myers has two children enrolled at the Woodstock Elementary School where his wife Fleurette was a teacher for many years.

Myers invites comments concerning his candidacy an will be available at all public meetings of the Board of Education. Registration for qualified voters will take place Wednesday, May 1, from 2-9 p.m., with the annual district voting scheduled for Wednesday, May 8.

Rondout Center Completed, Project Survived Problems

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

It took almost eight years, but the Rondout Neighborhood Center is finally finished (senior citizens facilities, youth facilities and gymnasium) at a cost that will total almost $510,000.

In a sense, the Rondout Neighborhood Center located at Broadway and Spring Street, has come full circle, although in making that circle an additional $143,000 was required to provide what was originally planned, deleted and then included again.

Originally, the Rondout Neighborhood Center was to cost $365,000. It was to include senior citizen and youth facilities, offices for the Kingston Housing Authority and a gymnasium. The federal government earmarked $193,512 for it early in 1966, the city authorized its share, $96,000 and the Kingston Housing Authority committed its share, $75,000. That was in 1966.

In 1967 the "urban renewal investigations" occupied most of the summer, bringing the program to a standstill and with it all construction activity in Rondout.

The same year, Rondout's first "community organizer" under the Rondout Community Action committee, a "poverty program agency" was killed in an auto accident. The death of Albert Brown brought forth a call in the community for the naming of the "soon to be constructed" center.

Politics raised its head in the spring of 1968 with Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan rejecting the proposal that any building be named after any man and putting it in writing by vetoing Common Council legislation naming the building in memory of 3rown.

The Common Council responded to Garraghan's veto by overriding it but in doing so succeeded only in hardening that chief executive's position against the project.

The project did go out to bid, however, and with little fanfare bids were opened in October of 1968. They came in over by about $65,000. Garraghan made no effort to secure the additional monies needed. In the meantime, the Kingston Housing Authority pulled out, building its own facility at Rondout Gardens.

That left the city with about $290,000 ($193,512 from the federal government and $96,000 from the city) to construct a building that would cost at least $430,000 and a chief executive opposed to the project.

In 1970, a new chief executive took office, Mayor Francis R. Koenig.

Koenig had only two problems on the construction of the building. The usual one, money, was solved easily enough by splitting the construction into two phases, using the money available for Phase I, the ground floor, and hoping that money materialized for Phase II, the second floor gymnasium complex.

The other problem was more delicate: The naming of the building. It was learend through numerous communications with federal officials that federal monies would not be made available for buildings named after anyone. It would have to be named "The Rondout Neighborhood Center," its original name, or there would be no federal money. Eventually, a plaque was dedicated and placed in the lobby of the building in honor of Albert Brown.

As it turned out, the "Phase I-Phase II gamble" paid off.

Bids for Phase I were opened on March 29, 1971 to the tune of $293,000. The city's share was $100,000 with the federal government paying the rest. Phase I was formally dedicated on Feb. 29, 1972, about three months after it was opened,

Bids for Phase II were opened on May 31, 1973, pegged initially at $221,000 but later reduced to $215,000. The city's share was $67,000 with the federal government paying $148,000.

Contracts were signed for construction of Phase II last July 18. The job was finished on April 1.

Architect's representative Robert E. Milliken says final inspections will be made by the end of this month but indications are that there will be no problems.

"The contractors deserve some degree of credit," Milliken told the Freeman. "It was a good job all the way through. Everything went on schedule and the cooperation was very good."

City officials have announced no date for formal dedication of the completed building.

Land Controversy in Paltz

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

The New Paltz Town Board authorized Supervisor Theodore Lasher to offer to bulid a road as an out of court settlement of litigation against the town by a New Paltz developer, at a town board meeting Wednesday night.

The town is being sued for the return of about 25 acres of land by New Paltz Growers Inc., (NPG) headed by New Paltz developer Jack Erman. The land had been deeded by NPG to the town for a park, but town voters defeated a bond issue for the building of a swim park on the land in January of 1972, and NPG is contending in court it should get the land back.

The land is valuable. Councilwoman Anita Taylor said Wednesday night that estimates of the market value of the land ranged from $5,000 to $10,000 per acre, and New Paltz Realtor Kathleen B. Scott said she agreed with the estimates.

As part of the agreement by which the land was deeded to the town, the town agreed to build a road through it to NPG's other holdings, in the area of the Duzine School. The road has never been built, and this is one of several reasons NPG is contending it should get the land back.

The board authorized Lasher to offer to build the road if the litigation was discontinued, and to offer the road building to the court if NPG refused. Lasher said the road had been laid out by town engineers. "If we retain the land, we will build the road," said Lasher.

He estimated the cost of the 1,800 foot road at $19,000.

Erman disagreed with the cost estimate. He said if any road were built he would "insist" that it be of the same quality as the Fulton Road extension the town is now working on, which is costing the town nearly four times as much per foot.

Proposed Sewer District No. 3 continued to be the subject of controversy. Many residents are concerned that the Duzine School may be included in the district. The administration of the New Paltz Central School District has said the Duzine School has an adequate septic system of its own, and they do not want the school in the sewer district. If the school is in the district, it will cost the district a lot of money.

Local resident Martha Hoberecht individually polled the board on how they stood on keeping the school out of the sewer district. The answer she got caused her to angrily stomp out of the meeting, after saying she found it "damned hard to try and look out for the rights of people with low incomes."

Lasher was positive. "I'm not going to put the school district in if they don't want to go," he said. Mrs. Taylor said she supported keeping the school out of the district, and the board was trying to draw the district lines to do so.

However, Councilman John Gibbons, David Jewett, and Dominick Sfregola all said they would not vote on what was not in front of them. They indicated they favored keeping the school out but that the matter was not resolved. "I lean in that direction, and I hope that's what comes out the door," said Sfregola.

The new district is supposed to serve the propsed Tri-State shopping center, the proposed Fulton Town Houses, and an apartment complex proposed by NPG. The costs of setting up the district are born by those in it.

Edward C. Palmenberg, engineer for NPG, urged that early action be taken on both the sewer district, and the water district NPG has petitioned for, with temporary arrangement being made if necessary. Lasher promised a meeting on the districts "within the week" of all parties concerned.

Revamping Set For Zoning Law

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK

The zoning law in the Town of Red Hook will be revamped from top to bottom, just in case portions may be challenged in the courts.

This was the general consensus of town board members Tuesday night when they appointed a Zoning Commission to begin a preliminary study of the four-year-old law.

Supervisor Robert Bowman, talking to the Freeman, pointed out that zoning laws in the towns of Rhinebeck and Hyde Park are being challenged and that Pleasant Valley's law is being similarly attacked.

The attacks are coming from developers who feel that the town laws have been unfairly applied against them, in most cases, and is a part of the zoning game that has been in the courts all over the country for some years.

Bowman said that, in contrast to two and three years ago, there have been relatively few applications received by the Red Hook Planning Board for major subdivisions. One large developer was discouraged in the towns' first year of zoning from beginning Vanalba Estates, with hundreds of residents becoming involved.

Appointed to the new Zoning Commission are Richard F. Hutter, Betty May Van Parys, Robert Rockefeller, Gordon L. Hammersley, and Roland Page, all of Red Hook.

Bowman said that some legal difficulties in Northern Dutchess may have stemmed from "some poor advice" received from a certain state agency during the formulative months of the law.

The town board also followed the example set recently by the Red Hook Board of Education in raising the senior citizens real estate tax exemption to include those making up to $5,000 a year, instead of $3,000. The legal limit is presently $6,000.

The supervisor urged any persons who would be affected by another upward revision to $6,000 to contact the town board.

La Leche League Meets April 16

The Kingston East La Leche League will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Pat Metzger, 15 Birch Street, located off Boice's Lane and Elmwood Street in the Town of Ulster. Mrs. Ruth Scogna, a qualified La Leche League Leader, will discuss "The Art of Breastfeeding, and Overcoming Difficulties", on Tuesday, April 16.

Mother's milk has been the ideal food for infants for countless generations as breastfeeding was commonplace and the accepted method of nourishment. Outside influence has affected its steady decline and there is great pressure on mothers to bottlefeed instead. New mothers no longer have a ready supply of experienced relatives or friends to call upon for breastfeeding information and support. The experienced mothers of the league are eager to help nursing women by passing along hints they have found successful in the coping with their own children. It is this mother-to-mother approach that is the basis of the La Leche League philosophy of "good mothering through breastfeeding."

The best time to attend meetings is during pregnancy but all interested women are invited along with nursing mothers and their infants.

Information on LLL or Breastfeeding may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Scogna of Kingston, Mrs. Pan Usticke of West Hurley or Mrs. Cheri Andrews of Tillson. For directions to Tuesday's meeting Mrs. Metzger may be contacted.

Detailed information may be obtained by contacting the Kingston Area Library or the Kingston AAUW. At the presentation were (L-R) Mrs. Mary Alice Lindquist and Mrs. Mary M. THEY WERE THERE — Amid all the diligent preparations for 1974 Freeman Fashion Premiere held Tuesday, April 2 in Community Theatre, the name of one participating store was omitted from the Sunday Women's Pages on April 7 and in the program. Although the names of our youthful models, pictured here, were included in the model section, the store they were representing was not. So, we take time out to make amends and to underscore that SMALL WORLD, 286 Fair Street, Kingston, was indeed a participating store in this year's fashion show. Modeling for them were Christy Fiore, Gina Misasi and Joseph Misasi as they appeared on stage that night. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

HOMEMAKERS RECOGNIZED — Mrs. John B. Plass, (L-R) executive director of Ulster County Homemaker Service, Inc., presents employe awards to Mrs. Viola Van Etten and Miss Irene Longendyke, both of Kingston, in recognition of their outstanding work in hours and number of cases serviced. Looking on are Mrs. John F. Crews, president of the board of directors and Mrs. Robert McSpirit, chairman of the personnel and recruitment committee. Miss Longendyke was also recognized as the Homemaker who has served the greatest number of families. One of the original Homemakers with the Service since 1970, Miss Longendyke, has serviced 48 cases including 85 children. (Freeman photo by Carey)

Awards Luncheon Held Here

The board of directors of the Ulster County Homemaker Service gave a luncheon to honor their Homemakers on Saturday, April 6 at the Lincoln Park Inn. Mrs. John F. Crews, president of the Board stated that since its inception in October 1970, the Homemaker Service has totaled almost 15,000 hours of service to the residents of Ulster County. "A task that would have been impossible without the dedicated service of these women who have functioned as homemakers in families where temporary assistance is needed," she said.

A highlight of the luncheon was the awarding of a special pin to Mrs. Viola Van Etten of Kingston by Mrs. John B. Plass, executive director of the Service. Mrs. Van Etten has worked more than 4000 hours in the three years that she has been a Homemaker, a record number. In addition, all Homemakers were presented with diplomas certifying they have successfully completed the Homemaker Training Course. Each Homemaker must spend a week in a classroom setting before being placed in a home and is instructed in practical areas such as home management, nutrition, accident prevention and safety in the home and the specialized care of children, the aged and chronically ill. Mrs. Elnora McSpirit, chairman of the Personnel and Recruitment Committee and one of the course instructors, presented the diplomas.

The Ulster County Homemakers Service was founded in 1970 by the Junior League of Kingston, Inc. as a non-profit community service. Last year it was accepted as the 16th member agency of the United Way of Ulster County.

Two Women Named to Aid Fund Drive

Mrs. John Kane and Mrs. Lawrence Gilmour have been named Co-Chairmen of the Special Gifts Committee by Mrs. C. K. Howe and Donald Dapson, Campaign Co-Chairmen for the fund drive to raise $200,000 toward Rhinebeck's Community Center.

The Special Gifts Committee will assume the responsibility for soliciting families within Rhinebeck's School District. This will require a well organized group of solicitors to cover the community on a house-to-house visitation, the committee states.

Mrs. Kane is a Vestryman in the Church of the Messiah, an active member of the Red Hook Golf Club and United Fund. She is a former member of the school board having served eight years, and past president of the American Field Service Chapter. Mrs. Kane remarked "when I realized we can have an $800,000 community center with only $200,000 to be raised by us locally, I am more than glad to help anyway that I can."

Mrs. Gilmour is an active member of the Episcopal Church and she devotes much time to Meals on Wheels. She was employed by the Gazette for a number of years. Mrs. Gilmour said "I know people realize how important a community center will be for everyone and I am sure they will gladly support it."

Mrs. Howe pointed out, "it is very revealing if we relate our three year pledges to some basic expenditures common to most families." She gave these examples: one six pack of beer per week at $1.43 amounts to $223 in three years; one haircut each two weeks at $2.75 without tip equals $215; one carton of cigarettes per week at $4.19 amounts to $654; one beauty parlor appointment per week at $4.50 with tip, but not counting permanents equals $702 and one bottle of liquor per week at $6.25 equals $975. Mrs. Howe asked "how can any community minded citizen think about such expenditures and not give generously to our propsoal which will mean so much to the people of Rhinebeck?"

While solicitation of the Citizens Committee members and Advance Gifts prospects has been in progress over the past few weeks, the campaign leadership was reminded recently that the first gift for the new Community Center was made last November by Miss Emilie Schultz, now living in Penny Farms, Fla. Miss Schultz is a former village resident and first school nurse in the district.

NAMED CO-CHAIRMEN — Mrs. Lawrence A. Gilmour, left, and Mrs. John B. Kane who have been named co-chairmen of the Special Gifts Committee for the $200,000 Rhinebeck Community Center Fund Drive.

Big Bear Hug Is What You Want!

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

Here is my solution to a problem I've had with hip-hugger pants that don't hug.

If the pants fit across the hips, yet the waistband is a mile too big, try running a strip of elastic into one end of the waistband and out the other end. Cinch it up to suit yourself, and secure.

This does not make the waistband appear gathered, only snug.

L.H.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Very often I would go on a trip and find I had forgotten my shower cap. I would have to buy a new one each time at the nearest shop.

Several weeks ago the same thing happened and no shop in sight! So I used one of the large heavy plastic bags I had packed my toiletries in.

Anita Keltz

* * *

Dear Heloise:

A lot of us have furniture with intricately carved designs in the wood. The problem is dusting those fine corners and curves. Sometimes we end up just packing in the dust in hard-to-get places.

So I took a soft paint brush about one-half inch wide (it can be a little wider), and sprayed it with an aerosol dust magnet I use, and brushed out those corners with a light stroke. The dust really clings to that paint brush!

Afterwards you can wash out your brush with just warm water, let it dry, and you're ready for the next time.

Mrs. Chamberlain

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I decided to peel some apples the easy way.

First I put a piece of adhesive tape around my thumb. Next I got out a TV stand and put my peeling pan on it. Then I pulled up one of my kitchen chairs, and peeled away!

My back rested and, best of all, my thumb had no cuts!!

A Reader

* * *

Dear Heloise:

If you like to sprinkle your clothes before ironing, use a new five-gallon plastic garbage can to place them in.

After you sprinkle the clothes very lightly and roll as usual for ironing, put them in the can, cover with the lid and let stand a few hours. The clothes will be perfect for ironing, and easy to get to.

No more fumbling around trying to get them out of a plastic bag.

"Still Learning"

Dear Heloise:

If you enjoy tea with lemon — put a tablespoon (or two), of concentrated lemon juice in the teapot when you brew it.

The pot doesn't stain, and your cups will stay cleaner too.

Mrs. H. Johnson

* * *

Dear Heloise:

My mother always used to save small clothing labels. When a button was torn off and left a hole in a garment, she placed a label between the facing and the outside of the garment, directly under the button to be sewn on.

This makes a very strong reinforcement.

A Faithful Reader

Dear Heloise:

In the hospital where I work, the fan I have is covered with heavy nylon net so no one can get her fingers caught in the revolving blades.

This is good protection, especially for children and older people.

Hey! Doesn't Hubby Have Rights? Says Abby: 'I Surrender, Dear!'

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You're the best in your field, but every now and then even you make a mistake. Example: Woman engaged to man who wants to buy a farm. She refuses to live on farm. He gives in. They live 28 years in city.

Now, with retirement approaching he wants to buy a modest 12 acres, where he can (presumably) raise a little garden, plant a few fruit trees, and perhaps keep a few chickens. He wants to spend his latter years in healthy, happy, productive activity; a most commendable and wholesome idea certainly.

The wife had her way for 28 years. Yet you tell her, "Don't give an inch or you'll wind up with 12 acres!"

Doesn't the husband have any rights? I say he should buy his little retirement plot and move on it, and if she doesn't want to go along — good riddance!

DON BUCK: GIRARD, KAS.

DEAR DON: When you put it that way, I'll have to admit you make a lot of sense, so after thinking it over, I surrender, dear.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest (and envy) the letter from the woman whose husband wanted to share her with his friends. I should be so lucky.

Twelve years ago I married a man who was so effectively taught in his childhood that sex was dirty, that after 12 years of marriage he still thinks sex is sinful.

Need I tell you what kind of bed partner he has been? I have had a lot of time to think about it, and if I had to choose between promiscuity and abstinence believe me, I'd choose promiscuity.

DOING WITHOUT IN GAINESVILLE

DEAR DOING: I don't "envy" you, either. But remember, "promiscuity" is no pass to paradise — if you can believe my mail. And I do.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is almost perfect. We've been married for three years and get along fine, but there is one problem. When we are with people Norton is very quiet. I am forever making up excuses for him, like, "Oh, Norton is tired tonight," or "Norton isn't feeling very well."

When he and I are alone together he is fine, but when we're in company, he clams up. People keep asking me if he's mad.

Have you any suggestions for him? Or for me?

NORTON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell Norton that silence is sometimes mistaken for unfriendliness, so please try to be more sociable. But don't nag him about it. He's probably shy, and too much pushing on your part will make him even more self-conscious.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO HEARTBROKEN PARENTS: From your letter I would say that you did your best. Now, quit punishing yourselves. Some parents "train up a child in the way he should go," and out of sheer spite and rebellion, the child deliberately departs from it.

* * *

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

COLORFUL, CHEWY jelly beans and assorted chocolate and marshmallow candies abound in every household during the Easter season. This year, reach into those Easter baskets and put your candies to a new use by baking them in some special holiday desserts. Cooking the candy way can add a festive touch this Easter with these two cookie ideas.

Try Candy Desserts This Easter Season

Have any candy handy?

You can put it to quick and easy use this Easter in so many distinctive ways you'll wonder why you never thought of them before. Dressing up desserts for family and guests takes only a small effort with these simple candy ideas.

Any familiar candy favorites can give that tried and true recipe some new life. Those colorful jelly beans found in many a basket during the Easter season can turn an ordinary cookie into a surprising treat when dropped into the batter.

Chocolate candies of many types also make excellent baking ingredients. The extra flavors in a nougat, nut or caramel chocolate candy bar can be a real baking bonus when melted or creamed into your cake and cookie recipes.

If you're wondering what can make desserts eye-catching and fun, candy can. Dress up your Easter holiday table with these two can-do recipes, developed by the National Confectioners Association.

Jelly Bean Jollies

One-half cup butter or shortening
One-third cup sugar
One-third cup firmly packed light brown sugar
One egg
One-half teaspoon baking soda
One-half teaspoon baking powder
One-half teaspoon salt
One-half teaspoon vanilla extract
One and one-quarter cups flour
One-half cup rolled oats
One cup jelly beans, cut up

Cream together shortening and sugars in a mixing bowl. Beat in egg, baking soda, baking powder, salt and vanilla. Stir in flour and oats until blended. Add jelly beans. Heat oven to 375 degrees. Drop rounded spoonfuls of batter about two inches apart on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake 10-12 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes 3 to 3½ dozen cookies

Coco-Marsh Nut Bars

One-half cup butter
Two cups graham cracker crumbs
Two cups plain or toasted coconut marshmallows, cut up
Ten and one-half ounce milk chocolate miniature candy bars with almonds, broken into small bits
One can (three and one-half ounces) flaked coconut
One can (fourteen ounces) sweetened condensed milk
One-half cup crushed peanut brittle

Melt butter in 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Sprinkle one and one-half cups of the graham cracker crumbs evenly over melted butter. Layer marshmallows, the chocolate and then coconut in pan. Pour milk over all. Combine crushed brittle with remaining one-half cup graham cracker crumbs; sprinkle over all. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven 30 minutes. Cool completely; cut into bars. Yield 24 1 by 2 inch bars.

The Little Gardens Club of Kingston held a meeting on Thursday, April 4th, at the home of Mrs. Harry Halverson, 186 Manor Avenue. Mrs. George Swart was co-hostess for the day.

A business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Joseph Carroll.

A slide program was presented by Warren Smith, Co-operative Extension Agent for the Commercial Food Agency. Mr. Smith works with local farmers and fruit growers on problems of soil, pest control, and the use of sprays and the timing of applications for blight control. Ulster County ranks second in importance in the United States for the production of top grade apples. The speaker also pointed out the importance of proper storage, frost control by the use of heaters, pruning, and high density planting to increase production per acre.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, April 18th, at the home of Mrs. Richard Becker, Russel Road, Hurley.

IT'S CLEAN-UP, PAINT-UP, REMODEL TIME!

Some folks never do seem to learn the easiest way in the world to divide a board, piece of paper or other sheet of material into halves. Just lay a 12-inch ruler diagonally across the width of the piece so that each end of the measure is flush with one edge of the sheet. The six-inch mark will always be right on center, no matter how wide the piece being scribed. The same idea can be used to locate thirds, quarters, etc., and—for sheets of plywood or other wider-than-one-foot spans—substitute a yardstick or tape measure for the ruler.

Mets' Apodaca Redeems Himself

NEW YORK (AP) — The winter of Bob Apodaca's discontent finally came to an end on a wintry spring afternoon.

Apodaca was thrust into the heat of the National League pennant race last Sept. 18 when the New York Mets ran out of relief pitchers. He made his major league debut in the ninth inning to try and protect a 6-4 lead against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ten pitches later, eight of which never made the strike zone, Apodaca had a perfect record — two batters, two walks. Only one of them scored, though, and the Mets held on to win both the game and, eventually, the pennant.

Relief ace Tug McGraw was unavailable Wednesday with a chest cold and a slight fever, so Manager Yogi Berra turned to Apodaca once again. The Mets, playing their home opener, held a 3-2 lead over the St. Louis Cardinals behind Jerry Koosman with runners on first and second and one out.

Apodaca threw two pitches, both sinking fast balls. The first was a called strike. Pinch hitter Tim McCarver bounced the second one right back to the 24-year-old right-hander, who started a game-ending double play.

"That game last year went through my mind constantly all winter," Apodaca admitted. "I wondered all winter if I could pitch in the major leagues. I wondered until I got to spring training and faced my first hitter. I got Joe Torre of the Cardinals out and it just seemed to turn things around."

Apodaca became a full-fledged member of the team when the needling started after Wednesday's save.

"Hey," Tom Seaver yelled, "you've only got four strikes to go to get up to .500."

Apodaca grinned a contented grin.

"It's got to be fate coming back in a situation like this where you can help the club seven months later," he said. "The feeling seeing everyone coming over to congratulate me when I came off the mound was almost better than picking up a World Series check. I was trying to make up for last year. This was worth waiting for.

"Last year in Pittsburgh, my legs were shaking and I was striding in three different spots throwing my warm-up pitches. I was completely nervous. I was anxious to get in a game this year. I wanted to get it over with. I wanted to get my first appearance out of the way and get an earned run average. An ERA means you've gotten somebody out in the big leagues."

Apodaca did have an ERA he gave up a run without retiring a batter.

"I wasn't really thinking about those walks," he said. "just about how much of a letdown it was to the team and to me. I just didn't let it get me down to the point where I was thinking that I might do it again."

Apodaca had help from catcher Jerry Grote, who also helped Koosman by singling home one of two first-inning runs off loser John Curtis and belting a decisive homer in the sixth. It was the second of the young season for Grote, who hit only one all last season.

"I got more satisfaction from seeing Apodaca get out of trouble than from the home run because I know that ain't gonna happen very often," said Grote, who is in his ninth major league campaign and has 29 homers.

"When I came into the game," said Apodaca, "I asked Jerry how to pitch to McCarver. He said keep it down and watch out for a shot up the middle. That gave me a little help right there and I was ready."

Where Are Atlanta's 'Fans'?

By United Press International

Those "fans' the Atlanta Braves were so concerned about a few days ago now don't seem that concerned about the Atlanta Braves.

Hank Aaron returned to the lineup Wednesday night for his first action since hitting his record 715th homer on Monday night.

But only 6,426 fans showed up to see Aaron go 0-for-4 although he did hit one drive to the warning track in left field.

Oh yes, the Braves lost 4-0 to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Asked if he was disappointed by the small turnout, Aaron said, "no." Then he added, "if we start winning some games, I think they'll come out."

But Eddie Mathews, the manager of the Braves who was in the middle of all the controversy about whether or not Aaron should be held out in Cincinnati so he could hit th homer before the home "fans," wasn't in any mood to talk about the crowd after the game.

"I didn't even look at the (bleep) crowd,' Mathews snapped after the game. "I've got more to do than worry about the (bleep) crowd. I'm tired of that (bleep) question."

Attendance has become a real problem for the Braves, who only drew 800,655 fans last season. Only the San Diego Padres, who were supposed to be moving last season, drew fewer fans in the National League with a 611,816 attendance.

The Braves had figured their 11-game home stand at th start of the season would be a real bonanza with Aaron shooting for his record homer. But Hank did it so fast, getting No. 714 in the opener at Cincinnati and No. 715 in the home opener Monday night that it was only worth one good home crowd on Monday night.

Of course, winning would help the Braves but the team is off to a 2-4 start and the future isn't too bright.

Atlanta got just four hits off Tommy John and the first two guys who got hits, Ralph Garr and Dusty Baker, were trapped off first base by John and were thrown out at second. John went eight innings and Mike Marshall finished up for the Dodgers, who have won five of their six games this season.

In the other games, San Francisco edged Cincinnati 4-3, Chicago topped Philadelphia 7-6, Montreal outlasted Pittsburgh 12-8 in 13 innings, the New York Mets nipped St. Louis 3-2 and Houston downed San Diego 9-1.

In the American League, Minnesota downed Chicago 6-5, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 6-4, Kansas City topped Oakland 4-1 and California edged Texas 4-3. The Baltimore at Boston game was snowed out.

Expos 12, Pirates 8

Rookie Jim Cox' double snapped an 8-8 tie in the 13th inning and started a four-run rally that lifted Montreal past Pittsburgh. The Pirates have now lost three straight. Pittsburgh had scored two in the ninth to send the game into extra innings after Montreal scored three in the top of the ninth.

Cubs 7, Phils 6

Billy Williams hit a two-run single in the ninth to lift Chicago past Philadelphia. Philadelphia had scored once in the top of the ninth to take a 6-5 margin.

Giants 4, Reds 3

Homers by Dave Kingman and Bobby Bonds carried the Giants over the Reds. Mike Caldwell went seven innings to get the victory wit hrelief help from Randy Moffitt.

Astros 9, Padres 1

The Padres got a break Wednesday. New owner Ray Kroc wasn't at the game so he couldn't call them "stupid" on the public address system. Kroc wouldn't have been too pleased as the Astros routed the Padres with pitcher Dave Roberts and Tommy Helms each doubling home a pair of runs. Kroc blasted the Padres on the PA system at their home opener Tuesday night. The team is now 0-5.

Padres' Owner Apologizes

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ray Kroc said Wednesday night he "talked without thinking" in berating his San Diego Padres over the public address system at San Diego stadium.

"Certainly I'll make a public apology," the Padres' owner said in a telephone interview from Hollywood, where he stopped on the way back to his Florida home. 'I used a bad choice of words and I'm sorry."

The interview was published in Thursday's San Diego Union.

Kroc, the McDonald's hamburger tycoon who bought the Padres this year, took to the loudspeaker during the team's home opener and fourth straight loss Tuesday night and apologized to the fans for "the stupidest ballplaying I've ever seen."

The statement brought a bitter reaction from players on the Padres and the visiting Houston Astros, and an apology was demanded by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and National League President Chub Feeney.

"I was bitterly disappointed and embarrassed before 40,000 people,'" Kroc said Wednesday night. 'I should have said the team wasn't playing good ball and urged the fans to stick with us, we'll get better.

"In fact, I shouldn't have gone on at all. But once you say a thing, you're stuck with it."

Royals' Duo Comes Through

By United Press International

Kansas City's bid to overtake the Oakland A's in the American League West this season after failing six games short last year will largely depend on the right arm of 25-year old Steve Busby and the muscles of John Mayberry.

Busby, beaten three times in four outings against the A's last year, showed he may be on the right road to helping the Royals improve their second place finish as he held the A's to six hits en route to a 4-1 victory Wednesday night.

Mayberry, a 6-foot-3, 220-pound slugger who led the Royals with 26 homers last season, gave Busby all the help he needed in the first inning when he cracked a 430-foot shot with a man on for his first homer of the year.

"I had to do something 'cause they kicked me around pretty good last year," Busby said. "I had to change my thinking, mix up my pitches more."

Busby, now 2-0 after finishing 16-15 last year, had a one hitter going and had retired 11 men in succession before Ray Fosse singled and took second on a wild pitch in the sixth. Bill North walked and Bert Campaneris singled home Fosse.

Ken Holzman, 21-13 last year, took his second loss in as many starts.

Busby also received offensive help from Fred Patek, who gave the Royals a 3-0 lead with a solo homer in the fifth. The Royals added their fourth run in the eighth on Amos Otis' triple and Fran Healy's double.

In other AL games, Milwaukee downed Cleveland 6-4, Minnesota edged Chicago 6-5 and California beat Texas 4-3. Baltimore at Boston was postponed by a spring snowstorm.

Brewers 6, Indians 4

Veteran Don Money blasted his first major league grand slam home run in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Brewers their victory over Cleveland and hand the Indians their fourth straight loss.

Twins 6, White Sox 5

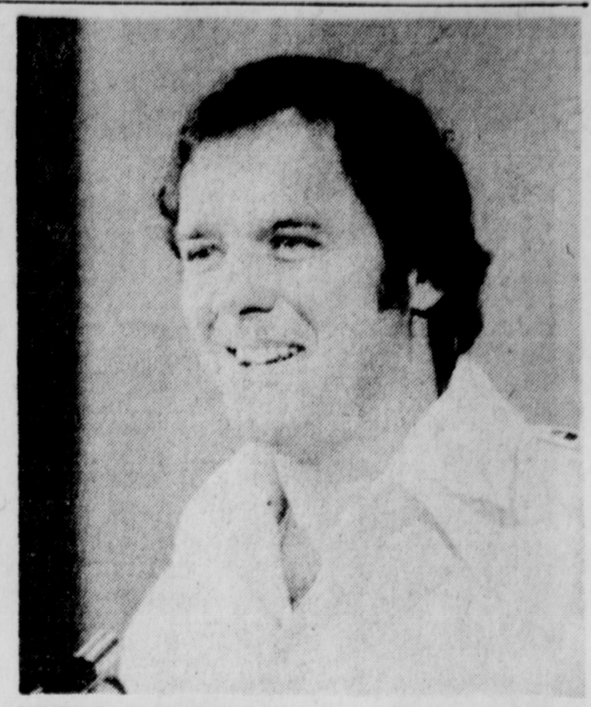

Five walks, Jerry Terrell's double and Tony Oliva's sacrifice fly gave Minnesota a four-run seventh inning in its victory over the White Sox.

With one out in the seventh, Terrell doubled to drive in Jim Holt, who was walked by starter Stan Bahnsen. Terry Forster relieved and walked Rod Carew and Larry Hisle with the bases loaded to score two runs. Cy Acosta replaced Forster and gave up a sacrifice fly to Oliva to score Sergio Ferrer. Hisle accounted for the other two runs with RBI singles in the fourth and sixth.

Dick Allen slammed a two-run homer in the fifth and Carlos May collected four straight singles to pace the White Sox attack.

Angels 4, Rangers 3

Richie Scheinblum scored the tie-breaking run from first base on Ellie Rodriguez' single and a fielding error by leftfielder Alex Johnson with one out in the ninth inning gave California its win over Texas.

Cowboys Ambushed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cowboys have been ambushed. And not by Indians.

It's the World Football League that's playing havoc with Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry's plans for next season.

Craig Morton, whose aspirations each football season grew and then were crushed, was the latest Cowboy to vamoose, announcing Wednesday he was signing with the Houston Texans for the 1975 season.

Star running back Calvin Hill said Tuesday that after playing out his option with the National Football League Cowboys, he was switching to the WFL's Hawaii franchise.

Morton has been unhappy for several years since Roger Staubach beat him out for the No. 1 quarterback spot despite Morton's fine record.

Landry said he wasn't certain whether Hill and Morton would play under their lame-duck status.

Landry announced that Ed "Too Tall" Jones had signed a multi-year contract, with the NFL club.

The Cowboys outbid the Detroit Wheel for the services of the 6-foot-7, 260-pound defensive end from Tennessee State.

The Cowboys earlier lost their third-round choice, quarterback Danny White, to the WFL's Toronto club.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Government was trying to head the WFL off at the pass with the introduction into Parliament of legislation that would ban operation of foreign professional football teams, except for exhibition games.

The bill's immediate objective is to prevent the Toronto Northmen of the WFL from operating in Canada.

The bill would also set a Canadian-content rule for Canadian football teams.

The sections of the bill dealing with foreign teams are explicit:

"No person owning, operating or managing a football team within a foreign league shall require or permit that team to play football in Canada," the bill introduced into the House of Commons said. "No person shall play football within Canada as a member or as a player on a football team within a foreign league."

Rejuvenated Clark Sparks Bullets

ONE-ON-ONE—Bullets' Archie Clark (21) goes up for a basket as Knicks' Willis Reed (19) tries to block. Capital tied the best-of-seven series with New York by clouting the Knicks, 109-92. Deciding game will be played Friday night in Madison Square Garden. (UPI)

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Archie Clark, the 32-year-old Capital Bullets guard who has been hampered by injuries for the past two years, says all he needs is lots of playing time. The New York Knicks would prefer that he remain on the bench.

Clark, substituting for little Kevin Porter, who was hit early with two fouls and was missing badly from the floor, led the Bullets to a 109-92 victory over the Knicks Wednesday night.

The victory evened the National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal playoffs at three-each and set up a dramatic final game in the best-of-seven series in New York Friday night.

"Archie was the king," said Elvin Hayes, who led all scorers with 31 points. "He got us over the hump."

Phil Chenier, who pumped in 22 points, said, "Archie was really the quarterback. He looked for the open man and when they dropped off on that guy, Archie hit the open shot."

Clark scored 20 points in the game, two more than he had scored in the five previous games. He hit for three field goals and six consecutive fouls shots after missing his first four in the final quarter.

The Bullets moved from a 68-67 advantage at the start of the final period to a 77-69 lead in little more than a minute, with Clark hitting four of the nine points.

Coach K.C. Jones said Porter asked him to start Clark at the beginning of the second half because of the poor first 24 minutes he had had. Porter later suggested that Chenier go into the game with Clark in the fourth period.

"I've been out of condition the last two years," said Clark. "I still don't feel 100 per cent. I used to feel that I could contribute every night. The last couple of years, there has been some doubt.

"I started to feel comfortable in the latter part of the game," he continued, smiling. "I haven't been able to adjust to coming off the bench. It's been five years since I have. It's hard to feel the tempo coming off the bench. The longer I stay in, the better I feel."

Jones and Walt Frazier, the Knicks' high scorer with 25 points, agreed that the crucial seventh game could be decided on which team controls the offensive rebounds.

"That's what this series has been about," said Jones. "New York has really been doing a job on the offensive boards. I think they'll come out and try to run us from the beginning and slam the offensive boards. We're going to stop them."

Frazier, expressing confidence that the Knicks will win in New York, said, "We've got to keep them off the offensive boards. They out rebounded us 23-5 and that kept them in the game."

He also said that depth of the Knicks bench will make a difference: "We're tired and they're tired. That's where our bench strength will show."

In the only American Basketball Association playoff action, the San Antonio Pacers downed the Indiana Pacers 102-86 to tie their Western Division playoff series at 3-3.

The Spurs relied heavily on the hot shotting of Bird Averitt who finished with 19 points and Swen Nater who had 18.

San Antonio never trailed after taking an early 8-7 lead and their lead grew as big as 23 points in the fourth period.

The series now switches back to Indianapolis for the deciding game Friday night.

Indiana's Roger Brown had 26 points.

The winner of this series meets Utah in the ABA West finals and both coaches think their clubs can go all the way.

"At this stage I believe both these teams are better than Utah," said Spurs Coach Tom Nissalke. "I don't believe Utah has as much help on its bench as these teams."

The Chicago Bulls, holding a 3-2 edge over the Pistons, hope to wrap up their Western Conference semifinal series tonight in Detroit.

Rangers: Textbook Checking Job

MONTREAL (AP) — Nobody ever suggested hockey was a non-contact sport.

Playing the game the way Lord Stanley would have liked, the New York Rangers did a textbook job of checking the Montreal Canadiens and skated away with a 4-1 victory in their National Hockey League playoff opener Wednesday night. And contact was the key.

"If you keep on them, they don't have a chance to set up their plays," said Ranger Coach Emile Francis, revealing nothing new. That strategy is called checking and it is a part of the Ranger game that has been missing for most of this season.

With goalie Ed Giacomin hollering instructions so loudly that he could be heard in the gallery, the Rangers responded with checks. And when Giacomin was submarined a couple of times, his teammates responded with their fists.

First Steve Shutt leveled Giacomin in the second period and angered Eddie so much that the goalie went after the young Canadien forward. Rod Seiling beat him to it.

In the third period, Montreal's Pete Mahovlich took a pot-so-friendly poke at Giacomin and wound up on his back with Brad Park flailing away at him.

"They must have been told to make contact when I handled the puck," said Giacomin, who was handling it a lot. "I'm very proud of my teammates for protecting me. Seiling doesn't usually hit but he really went after that guy. I was happy when they retaliated."

"Look," explained Seiling. "There's no way they're going to hit our goalie without five guys getting the offender. Any team in the league would do it."

Referee Ron Wicks kept the penalty box well-populated, especially in the first period when he called 11 minor penalties.

Henri Richard was serving one of them when Steve Vickers scored the game's first goal for New York. Nineteen seconds later, the Rangers were back on the scoreboard again when Bruce MacGregor connected.

"Whenever contact was made, we retaliated," said Francis. "In the first period, we were the aggressors and that's why we built the lead."

After the Seiling-Shutt disagreement, defenseman Dale Rolfe made it 3-0 for New York.

Shutt emerged from the penalty box to score Montreal's only goal halfway through the middle period and then Giacomin took over with some scintillating saves in the New York net.

Late in the third period, Pete Maholivh tapped Giacomin and found Park instead.

"I wasn't trying to hurt anyone," said Mahovlich. "He was out and I thought maybe I could move him out of the play and pick up an easy goal. There was Park."

After serving his penalty, Park completed the game's scoring with less than two minutes to play.

"It was a tremendous team effort," said Francis. "It was very nearly a perfect, all-around game."

Now, all he wants is another one in Game Two tonight.

Surprise Night

The first full night of National Hockey League playoff action was full of surprises.

—The New York Rangers, who finished with the 11th best goals-against record in the 16-team NHL, held the potent Montreal Canadiens offense to just one goal in recording a 4-1 opening-game victory Wednesday night.

—Scoring expert Phil Esposito of Boston was held to just two shots on goal and the Bruins, who scored 349 times during the regular season, tallied only once in their quarter-final series opener with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

—The Chicago Black Hawks, heavy favorites in their Western Division battle with Los Angeles, trailed 1-0 until midway through the second period of their 3-1 first-game triumph.

Meanwhile, the World Hockey Association playoffs continued with the Chicago Cougars defeating the New England Whalers 2-1 in overtime to even their best-of-seven series at two victories apiece; the Houston Aeros trimmed the Winnipeg Jets 3-2 to push their series advantage to 2-0, and the Minnesota Fighting Saints crushed the Edmonton Oilers 6-2 to take an overwhelming 3-0 advantage into Friday night's fourth game.

Bruins 1, Maple Leafs 0

Defenseman Bobby Orr—runner-up to Esposito in the scoring standings this season—had 10 shots on goal, but couldn't score in Boston's narrow triumph over Toronto.

One reason was goaltender Doug Favell, whose acrobatics nearly matched those of Gilles Gilbert in the Boston goal. Only Gregg Sheppard could score in the contest, shooting his own rebound past Favell from 15 feet out in the second period.

Otherwise, it was a duel between the goalies.

On one play, Gilbert was struck on the facemask with a shot, but still dizzily managed a spectacular arm save on Norm Ullman's rebound moments later.

Black Hawks 3, Kings 1

Stan Mikita's empty-net goal in the closing seconds clinched a victory despite a number of anxious moments for the Black Hawks.

The Kings, in the playoffs for the first time since 1968-69, struck first when Gene Carr tipped a Tom Williams shot past goaltender Tony Esposito at 9:08 of the opening period.

Chicago packed its other two goals into a six-minute span in the middle period. Darcy Rota hammered a pass from J. P. Bordeleau into the Kings net behind goalie Rogatien Vachon at 11:13, and Dennis Hull scored the winner from a scramble in front of Vachon at 16:51.

Chicago center Pit Martin tore a muscle in his kneecap midway through the first period and will be out for at least three weeks.

Cougars 2, Whalers 1

Chicago's underdog Cougars defeated New England on Ralph Backstrom's goal with 2½ minutes left in overtime. Backstrom skated around defenseman Brad Selwood and beat goalie Al Smith to the short side.

Jan Popiel deadlocked the game with just 25 seconds left in regulation play. The Cougars had pulled goaltender Cam Newton nine seconds earlier in an effort to tie.

Aeros 3, Jets 2

Three rookies—Marty Howe, Mark Howe and Andre Hinse—scored to lead Houston past Winnipeg. Norm Beaudin gave the Jets a 1-0 lead after 2:36 of play, but the Aeros scored the next three goals.

Marty Howe took a pass from father Gordie, also a rookie in the WHA, to tie the score at 16:24 of the second period, then Mark Howe and Hinse netted their goals within 62 seconds.

Houston carries its 2-0 advantage back home for games three and four.

Smith Rallies In WCT Blue

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Second-seeded Stan Smith dropped the opening set 6-7 but rallied Wednesday to stop Ismail El Shafei of Egypt and win a quarterfinal berth in the Blue Group World Championship Tennis tourney at the Vistana Racquet Club.

Smith won the next two sets, 6-3, 6-4, getting the decisive break in the last game of the third set when his successive forehand and backhand shots grazed the baseline, out of reach of the Egyptian.

Rate Miller Real Threat in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Relaxed and confident Jack Nicklaus, winner of more major titles than any other golfer, past or present, was the favorite today at the start of the Masters, but the oddsmaker thinks Johnny Miller's chances are almost as good.

Nicklaus, who already has four Masters among his 14 major championships, was to tee off at 1:35 p.m. EDT as a 3-1 favorite while Miller, winner of four tournaments the first three months of this year, was scheduled out an hour earlier as a 4-1 choice.

Although he insists he has had no specific goals since winning the PGA last August and thereby eclipsing Bobby Jones' previous record for most major victories, the 34-year-old Nicklaus admitted he liked being in the favorite's role.

"I'm just dreading the day I'm not the favorite," said Nicklaus, also the only man to win more than $2 million playing golf. "Although I don't have any specific goals for this year, I'd like to be in position to win all four major tournaments. To do that, I have to win the first one."

The Masters annually is the first leg of the so-called "Grand Slam" which also includes the U.S. and British opens and the PGA championship. Nicklaus has won all four at least twice, but never more than two the same year.

"I enjoyed the pressure that built up when I won the first two in 1972," said Nicklaus. "I would enjoy that again."

That was the year Nicklaus won the Masters and U.S. Open but had his drive for the "Grand Slam" ended by a second-place finish to Lee Trevino in the British Open.

Miller, a 26-year-old Californian who won last year's U.S. Open, started out this year's PGA tour like a house afire becoming the first man ever to win the first three tournaments in a row. He added victory No. 4 at the Heritage Classic last month and goes into the Masters with nearly $150,000 in golf earnings so far this year — more than double that earned by Nicklaus who won only the Hawaiian Open in six 1974 tournament appearances.

"I have been playing well although I haven't been scoring as well as I should," said Nicklaus. "Obviously, that was caused by my short game and I think I have that in hand now."

Nicklaus had a scare Wednesday when he tripped going down a single step in front of the clubhouse at the Augusta National, but he expressed confidence that although he appeared to hurt his back in the fall it wouldn't be serious enough to affect his play in the Masters.

Berry, a member of the Alvik team, is expected to be named Player of the Year. Coach of the team is Mike Perry, who is on leave from UCCC.

Red Hook's Kane on 3rd All-State Team

KINGSTON — Rhinebeck High School's Paul Kane, the Freeman's Player of the Year and Dutchess County's all-time leading scorer, today was named to the third team on the New York State Sports Writers Association's small school all-star basketball squad.

Kane, the 6-1 senior who averaged 23.9 points per game during the recently completed season, snapping all county career marks in the process, had been a fifth team selection last year.

Peter Bronson of DCSL Bi-Valley champion Oakwood was tabbed for first team small school honors, while Sam Copeland of Ulster County Athletic League titlist Fallsburgh joined Kane on the third team.

Only other local players to gain mention were DCSL Central Section champion Poughkeepsie's Larry Bennerman and Beacon's Rodney Paulin. Bennerman, the league's top scorer, made it to the ninth large school team, while Paulin was a tenth team pick.

Tom Hicks, a 6-2 guard from Smithtown St. Anthony's, was large school Player of the Year. His small school counterpart was 6-9 Chris Patton of St. Francis of Athol Springs.

Daddio Paces Junior Bowlers

KINGSTON — Dan Daddio, a Kingston High School senior, is "pretty excited" about leading the boys division of the Division I New York State Junior Bowling Championships at 17-84 Bowl in Middletown this week.

Daddio rolled scratch series of 500 and 554 for a 1054 six-game set that earned him the right to compete in the State Finals at Syracuse May 4-5 and an eventual shot at a $1,000 scholarship in the All-American Youth Bowling Championships.

"I had to strike on the first ball in the 10th frame to close out my nearest competitor," said Daddio, "and I got it." He rolled games of 164, 170 and 166 in his first set and 181, 204, 169 for his 554.

Five area juniors qualified at the Bowlerama — Dale Cook, Bill Schabot, Sue Jordan, Dave Porsi and Daddio — for preliminary eliminations at Newburgh, where Daddio led the field with a 246 solo and 1105 series. Miss Jordan also qualified for Division I but was unable to compete.

At the tender age of 18, Daddio has 10 years of bowling experience behind him, having started his career as an 8-year-old in the Ferraro Bowlerama Junior League. He averaged 172 with a high series of 592 and "a lot of small 200 games."

If Daddio survives the state finals, he will be eligible for the National Regionals at Dallas and the National Finals in Washington where 24 scholarships worth $1,000 each will be awarded to the winners.

Daddio is the son of Dante Daddio of Kingston, who bowled in the local Three-Man Classic for several years.

The sensation of the Middletown regionals was Robin Romeo, a 5-foot-5, 16-year-old 11th grader, who opened with 543, then bowled 269-687 for the highest women's triple in the history of the 15-year establishment. Robin's record breaking series, compiled on games of 269, 200, 218, gave her a six game total of 1230 and a runaway triumph in the girls' 16-18 division. She carries a 172 average.

The competition was in the following divisions: graduating high school seniors scratch; graduating high school seniors handicap; ages 16-18 scratch, 15 and under, scratch.

Jeff Killmeier (Unadilla) led the graduating seniors handicap with 1193 (144-pin handicap; Nancy Denny, Chappaqua, scratch, 463-511-97; Karen Fallot, Oneonta, 1051 (150-pin handicap).

Bob Masciaro of Highland High won the boys' 16-18 with 611-563-1174; Todd Strebel, Monroe, boys' 15 and under, 558-632-1190; Cathy Arpaio, Bloomingburg, girls 15 and under, 560-472-1032.

Volleyball Win For OCS Varsity

BOICEVILLE — Onteora High's varsity defeated Red Hook and Wallkill, while the Jayvee squad earned a split in Ulster County Athletic League girls volleyball competition here.

The varsity extended its record to 9 wins and 4 losses by blanking Red Hook, 2-0 (15-6, 15-11) and topping Wallkill, 2-1, (1-15, 15-5, 15-3).

Jayvees won over Wallkill, 15-7, 15-13, but bowed to Red Hook by scores of 15-7, 15-13.

Trout Stocking Begins

KINGSTON — The annual spring trout stocking program got underway today, with a total 16,485 eight-inch fish to be planted in 15 Ulster County streams, Fred Gentile, Fish Stocking chairman of the Federated Clubs of Ulster County announced.

The stocking program concludes April 26 when 7,900 Browns will be released at 12 noon in the Esopus at Phoenicia and an additional 860 at nearby Woodland Valley. The total to be stocked include 7,075 Brook trout and 9,410 Browns.

Plattekill Creek was to receive 1,255 Brooks and the Sawkill Creek 1,580 as the project got under way today.

Remainder of the schedule:

Fricke AJBC Head

Robert Fricke, a native of Saugerties, has returned to this village in his new capacity as Field Representative of the American Junior Bowling Congress.

His territory will encompass 14 states, as well as the provinces of Ontario and Quebec in Canada. The states include New York, Connecticut, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan (except the Upper Peninsula), New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Virginia.

After receiving his education in Brooklyn, the 38-year-old Fricke joined the Air Force. He retired after 20 years o service with the rank of tech sergeant assistant chaplain. While in service he spent much of his spare time bowling in base leagues and at one time carried a 182 average. His best game was 257. Fricke also played softball and coached basketball.

During his tour of duty, he spent two and one half years in Germany and was also stationed in Azores and Newfoundland. It was while in Newfoundland that he met his wife Rhonda. The couple has five children, Bill, 15, Bobbie, 10, David, 8, Debbie, 13 and Paula, 12.

ROBERT FRICKE

Fricke also served as the secretary of the Boston Junior Bowling Association in 1969-70-71. He doubled as an AJBC coach. Under his guidance, the association grew from 1300 to 2000 members. Frick was also fifth vice president of the ABC men's board of directors in Boston.

Fricke has a basic philosophy about junior bowling. "It flourishes in areas where the adults and establishments work," he says. "The junior programs pretty much reflect the work put into them. I find that in many areas only the minimum effort is being exerted."

The new AJBC field representative sees room for growth in Ulster County. "I've seen a lot of fine young bowlers in the county and they should be encouraged."

Fricke also strikes a blow for tournaments. "I feel the kids should be tournament-oriented as quickly as possible," he says. "It will pay big dividends in the long run." He singled out the states of New Jersey and Virginia where there is tremendous organization and activity in junior bowling.

Fricke is scheduled to host a coaches instruction clinic May 15 at the Bowlers Club here.

Lowe's, Acker's Win

KINGSTON — One divisional champion won, the other lost in the YMCA "A" Basketball League Playoff openers. Artie's Bar, runnersup in the American Division knocked off The Handlebar, National champions, 77-73, despite a fourth quarter injury to Joe Uhl, the league's top scorer.

Lowe's Pool, American Division champions, used a strong second half to edge Acker's Bar, runnersup in the National Division, 69-63.

Despite Uhl's exit in the fourth quarter, Artie's Bar rallied from 54-52 third quarter deficit to outscore The Barmen, 25-19 in the stretch. Coleman Link, the former UCCC ace, emerged as Artie's strong man with 29 points and 25 rebounds. Uhl, who averaged 34.5 points during the regular season, had 20 when he left the game with an ankle injury.

Rod Chando of The Handlebar took game honors with 32 points. Don Komosa added 14 and Tom Fiore 13.

Ron Burris led Lowe's with 27 points against Acker's. The game was close until Scott Miller, Acker's top scorer (19.2) fouled out in the fourth quarter. No more than seven points separated the teams and the score was tied 18 times and changed hands 12 times.

Chuck Jackson scored 13 points and pulled down 16 rebounds for Lowe's. Miller left with 18 points and Dave Whitaker had 13. Jim Alba, the league's best rebounder, collected 10 points and 24 rebounds for Acker's.

In 36th Season

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP) — The New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League will open its 36th season June 22, but the participation of the Jamestown and Geneva teams remains in doubt.

League President Vincent McNamara said Sunday the two franchises had not completed working agreements for the 1974 season. However, he added, "These cities can easily be worked into the schedule at any time."

'The Wizard of Oz' Captures Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Dorothy, the Tin Woodsman and the Cowardly Lion have met the children of Moscow. The result was a warm, enthusiastic embrace.

"The Wizard of Oz," performed by the Children's Theater of the State University of New York, was greeted with standing-room-only audiences and 10-minute standing ovations at its five performances at the Central Children's Theater.

All the actors are students at the university's Albany campus or teachers in the area.

Bruce Kellerhouse of RD1, Box 68, Kingston is a member of the cast, playing Monkey and the OZ courier in the production. He is a junior majoring in English education with a minor in theater at SUNY, Albany.

"Spasibo (thank you)!" the audience shouted as the actors took their multiple curtain calls.

"Pozhalsta (you're welcome)!" the performers yelled back, and some tossed the carnations they had received to the spectators.

"I'm absolutely flabbergasted by the reception we got here," said Bertilla Baker, the Dorothy, as the Russian women stagehands kissed and hugged her after the final performance Monday night.

"We had two runs of the play in the United States, but we were never received as warmly as we have been in Moscow."

The troupe is the first American university company to appear on a Russian stage. It will perform the play based on Frank Baum's classic for children in Hungary next week.

The production is sponsored by the Chase Manhattan Bank, which put up $30,000 to cover travel and incidental expenses, university officials said. They said the Soviet government supplied the group's hotel rooms, meals and local transportation.

The tour is not part of the official State Department exchange program.

Russian children are familiar with "The Wizard of Oz" because it has been translated into Russian under the title of "Magician of Emerald City."

The American troupe performed in English, but Russian words and phrases were scattered through the play.

Dorothy's dog Toto became Totoshka. The Scarecrow asked the Wizard of Oz for mozhghi (brains), the Tin Woodsman begged for a syertsa (heart), and the Cowardly Lion pleaded for smyelost (courage).

The Wicked Witch announced she planned to make the tin man into a samovar. The Scarecrow begged the audience, "Psovoneetsia Gleenda (Call Glinda, the Good Witch)," and the children responded with shouts of "Gleenda! Gleenda!"

Dorothy declared after her sojourn in Oz that "nyet miesto luchay domaz" — there's no place like home.

The lively musical numbers, especially a toe-tapping jitterbug routine, and the uninhibited antics of the lion, tin man and scarecrow captivated the audience.

In the finale, the cast sang "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" in Russian and brought down the house.

"I'm overwhelmed. I can't believe this," said Andrew Marashinsky, the loose-limbed scarecrow. "We were a little scared when we came over because we didn't know how the people were going to react to us. We never expected it to be anything like this."

Russian children and old women pressed the actors for their autographs and pushed little gifts into their hands.

Director Patricia Snyder confessed: "I'm melted, completely drained. There has been a special communication between the audiences and our kids — a kind of love. I've never seen anything like it before."

Soviet and American officials gave the usual speeches at the close of the show, saluting U.S.-Soviet cooperation and calling for friendship and peace.

FOUNDATION MONEY TO BARD — Clifford A. Henze, president of Heritage Savings Bank, Kingston presents a check for $500 from the Empire State Foundation of Liberal Arts Colleges to Robert J. Bruce (C) Bard College vice president, with Joseph F. Brady (R) Heritage executive vice president. The Foundation channels some $700,000 in grants from private industry to 25 liberal arts colleges in New York State annually. Last year Bard's share was about $24,000.

'Flying Saucers Real' ...Bennett Topic

MILLBROOK — "Flying Saucers Are Real" will be the topic of a Bennett College lecture April 16 by noted nuclear physicist and lecturer Stanton T. Friedman.

The public is invited for a small charge to the Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium at 7:30 p. m., with a reception for the speaker to follow in Halcyon Hall. Questions will be entertained from the floor.

Friedman has spent more than 13 years in study and investigation of UFOs, and he is convinced that Earth is being visited by intelligently controlled vehicles from other worlds.

Following his obtaining bachelor's and master's degree in physics from the University of Chicago, Friedman was employed in the field of nuclear physics doing work on nuclear aircraft, rockets, and nuclear power plants for space and earthbound applications.

He is director of the California UFO Research Institute and is the only nuclear physicist member of the National Entertainment Conference, as well as holding memberships in such groups as MENSA and several UFO organizations.

Friedman has published many articles on flying saucers in the popular press and in professional journals, and he has given hundreds of lectures on the subject to college and professional audiences since 1967. He was one of 12 scientists contributing to the Scientific Symposium on UFOs held by Congress in 1968.

Heart Course Now Underway

KINGSTON — Archie Lebrecht and Vincent Wallace.

The Mid-Hudson Heart Association with the American Red Cross, is conducting a brand new lay instructors course in cardiopulmonary resuscitation under the American Heart Association's new Standards of CPR and Basic Life Support.

CPR is a combination of closed-chest massage and mouth-to-mouth breathing which can save lives if properly administered within six to ten minutes of cardiac arrest. Heart stoppage can be caused by electric shock, drowning, drug overdose and heart attack, among other things.

The new course was offered at Ulster County Community College under the guidance of Edmund H. Reppert, M.D., President of the Mid-Hudson Heart Association. Robert Kurland, Associate Professor with the College, and Dr. William Odeneal, Chairman of the Athletic Department of SUNY at New Paltz. It is now being offered at Columbia - Greene Community College in Valatie, supervised by Edward P. Ginouves, M.D.,

Classes are carefully limited in size so that individual attention can be given to each future instructor. Participants who are now certified and will soon set up courses for their local emergency and para-medical teams are as follows: Daniel Morehouse, Marie Renaud, Marilyn J. Delgado, Joaquin C. Delgado, Frederick H. Fogel, Richard T. Torpey, Mark Klonfas, George W. Benz and Harriet C. Weber.

The Heart Association plans to offer this course regularly in three counties and will then supply instructors with the necessary teaching materials and equipment to the end that every single community will have people trained and certified in this vital, newly-approved, life-support process.

At present there are two Resusci - Annes, an Anatomical Anne, and Resusci-Baby available for student practice, but Heart hopes to purchase additional models. Depending on the number of simulated life-support systems each has, the life-sized "Annes" cost from $350 to $1800.

Public participation in fund-raising projects will help.

SYMBIONESE THREAT — Attorney Vincent Hallinan, a trustee of the $4 million food ransom offered for the safe return of kidnaped Patricia Hearst, said Wednesday in San Francisco his life had been threatened by the Symbionese Liberation Army. Hallinan tells reporters that police and the FBI were investigating the threat made through Attorney Marvin Brown in Oakland. Brown had received a telephone call from a man identifying himself as a member of the SLA who threatened that Hallinan "would be shotgunned down on the streets." (UPI)

Long Island Executives Charged for Kickbacks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Five executives of three Long Island technical publication companies doing business with the Grumman Aerospace Corp. in Bethpage have been charged with paying up to $500,000 in kickbacks to eight Grumman employes.

The eight Grumman employes also were charged in the scheme and all 13 pleaded guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

U.S. Attorney Edward J. Boyd, who announced the charges, said the 13 were charged with bid-rigging on government contracts, paying of illegal kickbacks and fraud.

According to Boyd, the investigation by his office spread to Texas, Georgia, Connecticut, New Jersey, California, Massachusetts and Florida.

He said further indictments were expected.

In addition, Boyd said, the government was considering filing a civil suit to recover the kickback money.

Boyd said the kickback money, which represented between 5 and 10 per cent of the money involved in the contracts, was used to pay for "high living" — cars and vacations to such places as Israel, the Bahamas and Las Vegas between 1970 and 1973.

An FBI official said the investigation began last August, when Grumman officials reported possible irregularities in their subcontracts for technical manuals for the Navy.

Eisenhower College Action Is Deferred

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trustees of Eisenhower College met here Tuesday to discuss the future of the financially troubled upstate institution named for the late president.

Gen. Lauris Norstad, chairman, said the trustees approved the following resolution:

"Whereas, a month ago we envisaged the possible necessity of closing Eisenhower College by board action, as of this date certain favorable signs make us optimistic enough to defer any such action at this time.

"The board will appraise the long term future at another meeting by May 1. Meanwhile, we will make every effort to protect the future of all students, faculty and staff."

A college spokesman said $218,000 had been raised in a drive to wipe out a deficit of $370,000. Officials had indicated earlier it might be necessary to close the college at the end of the current academic year.

Rep. William Walsh, D-N.Y., has legislation in Congress that would make a federal grant of $10 million available to the College.

The school, founded in 1968, is situated at Seneca Falls in the Finger Lakes region.

Your Horoscope

Friday, April 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until sundown, you need to be very careful that you do not alienate one in a position to be very helpful to you by stating views contrary to his, for your hasty comments are likely to be more from an urge to express yourself than from knowledge of facts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Show you are loyal to kin although don't agree with some of their ideas. Try not to argue, no matter what may arise. Entertainment in p.m.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

HOMELY: (Q.) I don't have any friends because I am ugly. It's not just in my mind. Kids tell me I am ugly. I've had kids I've never seen before come up to me and say, "You ugly dog. Did you ever look in the mirror?" Sometimes kids will walk up to me and bark in my face.

I am 18 and a senior. My only friend is in the eighth grade. I like her very much but I would like to have friends my own age also.—Dog Face in Mississippi.

(A.) It is possible to be very homely and still have a world of friends. This is true for both males and females.

Try to stop blaming your looks for your lonliness. Seek out friends, both boys and girls, of your own age.

I have one other suggestion. I am not a strong advocate of self-improvement courses, but I think a good one might help you. It would teach you how to improve both your appearance and your self-confidence.

LIKE NOTHING: (Q.) My girl friend treats me like nothing. She also has a very bad temper and we often have arguments.

But I do like her a lot. Please help me!—Suffering in Pennsylvania.

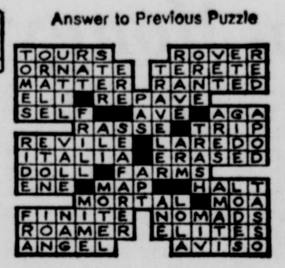

(A.) It is going to take a tremendous amount of liking to balance the treatment you seem to be getting from your girl friend. I doubt that she is worth it.

When Gareth of Orkney arrived at King Arthur's court he was regarded as a country bumpkin. It didn't take him long to establish his position as one of the knights at both jousting and serious combat. Today's hand shows also that he was quite good at the bridge table.

The wily Mordred sitting West cashed the king and queen of hearts and shifted to the jack of diamonds.

Gareth won with the ace; led the jack of trumps; went up with dummy's ace; returned to his hand with the ace of clubs; cashed his king of diamonds; led a second trump to dummy; ruffed the last diamond and played one of his low clubs.

Mordred won with the king and was forced to lead a red card which allowed Gareth to ruff in dummy and discard his last club.

Nothing remarkable about the play. Anyone could have made it. Furthermore, Mordred could have foiled Gareth by simply dropping his king of clubs under the ace.

Why didn't he? Because Gareth's line of play had caused Mordred to relax and overlook the danger of hanging on to the king.

'ABSOLUTELY NOT GUILTY' — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinacke of California is surrounded by reporters as he leaves District Court in Washington, D. C. Reinecke pleaded "absolutely not guilty" to three counts of lying to the Senate Judiciary Committee during testimony concerning financing of the 1972 Republican National Convention. Nixon Pleased With Reception

WASHINGTON (U P I) — President Nixon is pleased with the reception he got Wednesday campaigning for a congressional candidate in Michigan and may make further tests of his popularity, his chief spokesman says.

Returning from a presidential motorcade through Michigan's Eighth District — a traditionally Republican peninsula jutting into Lake Huron north of Detroit — White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated Nixon might do more campaigning this year. He said Nixon was "very pleased" by the warm reception accorded by more than 20,000 who turned out along the sparsely populated 57-mile rural and small-town route.

Asked if there would be more such trips, Ziegler smiled and said, "he'll be out."

Speaking four times in the five-hour trip on behalf of candidate James M. Sparling, Nixon heard jeers and chants of "Impeach Nixon Now." Near Saginaw, where his plane landed, some signs read "Resign With Honor" and "If You Love Us—Leave Us."

But most of the placards along the motorcade supported Nixon—"We're for You Mr. President," "This is Nixon Country" and "Hang in There."

Nixon returned to Washington Wednesday afternoon, and the White House awaited word from the House Judiciary Committee, which is deciding whether to subpoena 41 Watergate-related presidential tapes.

"We're going to turn over all materials St. Clair deems relevant," said White House aide Dean Burch on the return flight to Washington.

The Michigan trip was Nixon's first strictly political campaign since the Watergate scandal broke open a year ago. But he never mentioned the scandal or his own political troubles, sticking instead to a traditional, informal campaign style.

He chided Congress for refusing to approve 17 of his proposals, particularly energy legislation. "We have moved," said Nixon, ". . . but the bottleneck is in the Congress."

State GOP chairman William McLaughlin said the visit "was a definite plus. It created a lot of interest and I think we can translate that into votes Tuesday."

But United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock, who has called for Nixon's resignation, noted that the President avoided Saginaw and Bay City, which both have high unemployment rates. "I don't think he had much impact on voters in the Eighth District," Woodcock said.

Sparling is running for the seat vacated by veteran Republican James Harvey, who was appointed a federal judge. His opponent is Democratic state legislator J. Robert Traxler, who has been hitting hard at the Watergate scandal.

Ex-Hughes Head Traces $100,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The former head of Howard Hughes' Nevada operations tried to trace for a federal court Wednesday the path by which $100,000 in Hughes' cash, meant for President Nixon, found its way to C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo's Florida bank vault.

Even the judge appeared perplexed.

Well known names wander in and out of the story told by Robert Maheu. Rebozo was described as having "cold feet" and along the way, half the cash was diverted to replace $50,000 given secretly to then Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, according to Maheu. Humphrey has repeatedly denied taking the money.

Maheu testified that although Hughes wanted to give the money to Nixon for his 1968 presidential campaign, it was not until 1970 that Rebozo had possession of all the money.

"Why did it take so long?" U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson asked about the two-year transaction.

"The injection of third persons," Maheu replied.

(Rebozo has since given back $100,000, saying he kept it in a safe deposit box in his Florida bank without Nixon's knowledge).

There was resistance at one point or another from former Nixon adviser and cabinet officer Robert Finch, Rebozo and Hughes lawyer Edward P. Morgan, former Nevada Gov. Paul Laxalt, former Hughes aide John Meier and Richard Danner, who worked for both Hughes and Nixon.

Maheu said the contribution was solicited in 1968 by Danner —like Maheu a former FBI agent — who was then a fund-raiser for the Nixon campaign in Florida.

Originally, during the 1968 election campaign, Maheu testified, Danner asked Morgan, representing Hughes in Washington, about delivering the money, but Morgan wanted a receipt from Rebozo.

Then it was suggested that Meier and Donald Nixon serve as intermediaries, he said, whereupon Rebozo backed out.

"Mr. Rebozo got cold feet and did not want to be involved . . . because of those names mentioned," Maheu said.

It was then, in December, 1968, that Maheu moved to hand the cash personally to Nixon at Palm Springs.

Laxalt, then the governor of Nevada, set up the meeting, Maheu said, and Maheu arrived with a case full of $100 bills in the trunk of a car, but the meeting was cancelled by a presidential "emergency."

Maheu testified earlier he believes that Finch had got an idea of the purpose of the meeting from Laxalt, and blocked it.

Meanwhile, $50,000 was given by check to various Nixon fund raising groups in Nevada, Maheu said.

The $50,000 in cash he had been unable to hand Nixon in Palm Springs was used to repay an advance from another Hughes operation. That money, Maheu has repeatedly sworn, he handed to Humphrey in a limousine outside a Los Angeles hotel in 1968, in return for an understanding that Humphrey would try to abolish the underground nuclear tests in Nevada that Hughes felt were disturbing his Las Vegas casinos and hotels.

In July, 1969, Maheu said, he took $50,000 from Hughes' personal account in Los Angeles, and gave it to his son, Peter Maheu, who gave it to Danner — by that time a Hughes employe — who gave it to Rebozo.

In 1970, he said, he took $50,000 from Hughes' Silver Slipper Casino, and he and Danner flew to Florida with it and handed it to Rebozo.

Porter Sentenced: 30 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, who handled the surrogate speakers program in President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced today to serve 30 days in a federal correctional institution for lying to the FBI in its Watergate investigation.

Porter, who will be 36 on Saturday, is the fourth former White House aide who has been sentenced to prison but the sentence was the lighest of any.

The charge carried a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine but a lawyer from the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Porter's involvement in the Watergate cover-up was "less in degree than others who pleaded guilty to felony charges."

Porter, who now works in his father-in-law's small construction business at Laguna Niguel, Calif., had admitted to the Senate Watergate Committee that he also gave perjured testimony to the grand jury and at the 1973 Watergate break-in trial.

He said he agreed to the lie "because of the fear of group pressure that would ensue, of not being a team player."

The false story concerned money he gave to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate break-in. Porter said deputy campaign director Jeb. S. Magruder had ordered him to give money to Liddy for "dirty tricks," and that he turned over some $35,000.

At the end of June 1972, some 11 or 12 days after the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters, Porter said Magruder told him that "dirty tricks" would sound bad to investigators and asked that they concoct a cover story.

Mitchell Denial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell testified Wednesday that he did not try to fix a government investigation of financier Robert L. Vesco in return for campaign contribution.

Mitchell, who along with Maurice Stans is charged with conspiracy and perjury in connection with Vesco's $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign, forcefully denied trying to tamper with the investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Testifying at his trial in U.S. District Court, Mitchell said his only connection with the Vesco case was a telephone call to SEC Chairman William Casey to arrange a meeting with Harry Sears, a go-between for Vesco and former New Jersey state senator.

"Did you at any time ask Casey to do anything but what you just described?" Mitchell's defense attorney, Peter Fleming, asked.

"No, not at any time," Mitchell answered.

"Did you feel you were impeding the SEC investigation?"

"On the contrary," Mitchell said "I thought I might further it."

The SEC inquiry eventually resulted in a civil suit accusing Vesco of looting Investors Overseas Services, a mutual fund empire Vesco had wrested control of from Bernard Cornfeld, of $224 million.

FBI Solves the Case Of Missing Ransom Money

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — The 8-year-old boy from Dix Hills, N.Y., was released unharmed in New Jersey and his accused kidnapers were arrested and charged. But the $50,000 ransom that John Calzadilla's father tossed out of a moving car in an attache case at 2 a.m. March 8 was missing.

The FBI announced Wednesday it now knows what happened to the money. Agents said two railroad workers not involved in the kidnaping happened to see the attache case fly out of the window of the car and land near railroad tracks in suburban North Bergen, N.J. They got to it before the kidnapers arrived, took the money and ran.

The two men were arrested Wednesday and charged with failing to return the ransom money. The FBI said $46,000 of it has been recoverd.

U.S. Attorney Jonathan L. Goldstein said when the kidnapers of the boy arrived at the place the money was supposed to be and did not find it, they apparently panicked and decided to release the boy unharmed. Eight persons accused of being involved directly in the kidnaping have been arrested.

The two men accused of intercepting the ransom money were both employes of the Penn Central Railroad.

They were identified as Richard Ventola, 26, of Weehawken, N.J., and Cesar Ortega, 22, of North Bergen. Their attorney, Keven Prongay, said they did not act with criminal intent.

After finding the money, Prongay said, "they didn't know what to do with it."

The boy was abducted the afternoon of March 6 while walking home from school near his home on Long Island and was released unharmed two days later. His father, Michael Calzadilla, borrowed most of the money used to pay the kidnapers' demands.

Steel Contract Imminent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Steel industry and union negotiators were reported near agreement today on new contracts covering 350,000 workers in the basic steel industry, with the settlement expected to follow the pattern set earlier in the aluminum and can industries.

Sources close to the talks said a final agreement could come as early as today, well in advance of Monday's deadline calling for submission of unresolved issues to binding arbitration if agreement is not reached by that date.

The present contracts expire Aug. 1, but under the "Experimental Negotiating Agreement" (ENA) worked out last year, the United Steel Workers (USW) agreed to give up the right to strike over national bargaining issues in return for arbitration of any unsettled issues.

USW President I. W. Abel said he agreed to the unprecedented negotiating agreement to forestall the normal pattern of steel stockpiling in anticipation of a strike. This stockpiling hedge against a possible strike has led to increased imports of steel and to layoffs after contract settlement as steel users relied on their stockpiled inventories rather than ordering new shipments.

The ENA has not completely eliminated the possibility of strikes in the industry, however. Union locals still will be able to call walkouts over local issues when local bargaining takes place after the master national contracts are signed.

Negotiators for the union and the 10 basic steel companies met at the Shoreham Americana Hotel here Wednesday trying to hammer out final details of the three-year agreement.

There was a news blackout on the talks, but sources close to the negotiations said the two sides appeared to be close to a settlement.

The USW contracts with the aluminum and can industries provided wage increases averaging about 13 per cent over 40 months, plus an improved cost of living escalator clause that will provide an additional one cent per hour wage increase for each 0.35 point rise in the Consumer Price Index.
